A Modern Tragedy
Paul Stood on It
Nine More Great Women Sickening, But Not Terrifying
—By Arthur Brisbane—

THERE ARE TRAGEDIES, real and modern, that make fiction seem feeble. James McGuire, Pittsburgh policeman, heard, on the radio, "Child in serious condition at Magee Hospital. Blood transfusion needed. Any patrolman wishing to offer self, proceed at once to hospital."

McGuire said to his mate, touring the city with him in search of criminals, "that's tough," and hurried to the hospital.

When McGuire approached the baby, his arm washed with alcohol, ready for puncture he saw an infant, prematurely born, in the arms of his own wife, and the baby was his son, his fifth child.

McGuire gave more than a pint of his blood, showing the desperate need of the infant, and returned to work, listening at each police radio station for any further call. There was none. The child was dead.

Joyous news for New York's Cathedral of St. John the Divine. Archbishop Chrysostomos, head of the Greek Church in Athens, has sent to the New York cathedral a genuine piece of stone cut from the Areopagus, the rock on which St. Paul stood preaching to the Athenians.

Much virtue must attach to such a relic, in the mind of every Christian. Had not St. Paul, like St. Peter, come preaching Christianity to Europe from Asia, which never would accept the religion revealed on Asiatic soil, Europe's Christian civilization might never have existed.

A Mohammedan would give all he has for a fragment of the Kaaba stone, from which Mohammed rose from Mecca to Heaven, on his wonderful white mare. Equally precious must be the stone on which Paul stood preaching to Greeks that had outgrown their pagan gods and needed a new faith.

But how much more valuable would be the acquisition of Paul's power to convert and his willingness to see the truth and take it seriously?

Pres. Lores of the Delaware & Hudson railroad, trustee of New Jersey's College for Women, offered a prize for the best list of the nine greatest women "in western civilization." Miss Margorie Newmark of North Plainfield won with this list:

Florence Nightingale, Clara Barton, Susan B. Anthony, George Eliot, Sarah Bernhardt, Mary Harris Jones (American sociologist), Vera Ivanovis Zasulitch (Russian revolutionist), Jane Addams and Marie Curie.

In that list, Susan B. Anthony is the best name. Harriet Beecher Stowe and Julia Ward Howe might have been squeezed in somewhere among the American women.

BUT, if asked which are the 10 greatest painters, or writers, you name those that painted the 10 finest pictures, or wrote the 10 greatest books.

To find the 10 greatest women name the 10 greatest men "in western civilization," and IN THEIR MOTHERS you have the 10 greatest women.

You judge a painter by his pictures, a soldier by his victories, a woman by her children. If a painter said, "painting is not good enough for me; I want to be a picture frame," you would pity him. The same with a woman who says, "having fine children is not enough for me, I want to be a stateaman."

The Lord paid woman a great compliment when he made the first man and woman, and made woman responsible for creating all the others.

Mr. Robinson of Arkansas, Democratic leader in the Senate, says the persecution of Jews in Germany "is sickening and terrifying." Sickening because of their brutality, YES; terrifying, NO.

There is nothing new in the Hitler persecution, nothing to be compared in "terror" with the brutalities of former days, nothing that Jewish resourcefulness and courage will not overcome.

When 800 Jews were burned, one after the other, at one time, because they refused to deny their religion; when an old Jew endured horrible tortures, at intervals, for six months, finally dying under torture rather than destroy others by testifying falsely, you might call that "terrifying."

The congressional committee investigating the loss of the Akron, due to management by men that lacked long dirigible experience, demands replacement of the Akron and declares officially, "administration of lighter-than-air ships by the navy should insure continuity of personnel and experience. Only fully trained officers of wide experience should be in command of airships."

The navy shows its respect for Congressional opinion by removing Comdr. Wiley from airship service to routine duty on board a light cruiser, in obedience to the rule that officers shall be sent on sea duty after a certain amount of "shore duty."

3 Trapped in Pearl St. Fire Are Rescued on Ladders

A woman and two men, trapped on the fifth floor of a blazing building at 60 Pearl st., today, were rescued over ladders by firemen before a huge noonday crowd.

Two alarms were sounded for the fire, which, starting in the basement, spread so some oil. Thick smoke poured up the elevator shaft to the top of the structure, blocking escape.

Patrolman Joseph Brooks ran up four flights of stairs to save the three occupants of the top floor, but was driven back by heavy smoke.

He descended to the street and directed the first firemen to arrive to the rescue.

The rescued are Charles A. Claflin of 355 Boston ave., Medford, president and treasurer of the C. A. JURY TAKEN TO KIDNAP DUNGEON

Panel Chosen in Less Than Hour in Peggy McMath Case

By JAMES J. SMITH
Boston Evening American Staff Correspondent

Barnstable, June 12—With characteristic Cape Cod brevity and dispatch, a jury was chosen today for the Peggy McMath kidnaping trial and taken at once to view the scenes of the crime, especially the "dungeon" under an old house.

They don't experience any trouble getting juries on the Cape and in something over 45 minutes this morning, 12 men representing a cross-section of this district's recently disrupted tranquil life were selected to decide whether Cyril and Kenneth Buck, Harwichport brothers, are guilty of having kidnaped the courageous little 10-year-old miss on April 2, and of having extorted $60,000 from her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Neil C. McMath, both members of prominent Detroit families.

After a brief opening by Dist.-Atty. William C. Crossley, the jurors were taken to view Peggy's home, the Harwich village school from which she was stolen, the shack on Harwichport golf course where she was concealed one day, the "dungeon hole" in Harwichport where, under a house, she was held captive two days and nights.

WIVES IN COURT.

Statement of Kenneth Buck that he would name two others as the real plotters of the crime he is alleged to have confessed, and the government's announced intention to show Cyril, self-styled "innocent party" in ransom negotiations, as equally guilty in the conspiracy, were highlights at the start of trial.

The courtroom was crowded to capacity, with many of the spectators women. Early summer Cape visitors in sports costumes mingled with simply attired natives in the

KANDLER GIVEN 9 TO 15 YEARS

Edward Kandler of Mora st., Dorchester, self-confessed incendiary and one-man arson ring, was sentenced to from 9 to 15 years in state prison by Judge Fosdick in Salem court today.

No sooner had Kandler started to prison than he was ordered back to court again by Judge Fosdick, who was not fully satisfied that the charge of attempting to burn, to which Kandler pleaded guilty, was a misdemeanor or a felony.

If a misdemeanor, Kandler cannot be sent to State prison on that charge. Final sentence was delayed while Judge Fosdick looked up the law.

Kandler received from 4 to 5 years for attempting to set fire to the Marblehead home of William I. Schell of Brookline, a former assistant district-attorney of Suffolk County, and from 5 to 10 years for breaking and entering, and larceny of $1000 in jewelry from the Schell home. One sentence must be completed before the other is begun. Kandler had pleaded guilty to both charges last week.

6000 JOBS IN CURLEY PLAN; U. S. WILL HELP PAY

Ely Will Get Program Tomorrow; Huge Projects Due

A $40,000,000 program of public works construction for Boston was being drawn up today in the mayor's office by Mayor Curley, city councillors and representatives of the Chamber of Commerce and Boston Planning Board.

The conference, starting early this forenoon, was still in session late this afternoon, but Mayor Curley interrupted it to disclose its purpose.

The program is being planned under the National Industrial Recovery Act and will be presented to Gov. Ely within 24 hours. The governor asked the mayor to submit such a program.

U. S. TO HELP PAY

Gov. Ely will submit it to the legislature. Under plans of the national administration, the Federal government will pay 30 per cent of the cost, and the city will finance the rest out of a bond issue.

About 6000 Boston men will be employed for at least a year, if tentative plans go through, the mayor said.

Every ward in the city will benefit.

At least three new bridges will be built, also new schools, new buildings to extend the facilities of City Hospital, and new streets. Streets now in need of repair will be fixed.

TO WIDEN STREETS

Sections of the North End will see tenements razed and replaced with small parks.

Streets will be widened in the South and West Ends. Chambers st., Charlestown, is another street designated for widening. The Chelsea st. widening would cost $700,000.

Carson Beach, South Boston, and Tenean Beach, Neponset, will be improved. The South Boston Strandway and the East Boston Strandway in the Wood Island Park section will be extended.

ROOSEVELT MAGIC HAS CONGRESS WONDERING

COST OR GAIN OF WHAT'S DONE IS PROBLEM

Credit or Balance Goes to President, Who Curbed Own Power

By RICHARD WASHBURN CHILD
Author, Diplomat and Former U. S. Ambassador to Italy

Copyright, 1933, Universal Service, Inc.

Newport, R. I., June 12—What will it gain?

What may it cost?

As to the results of the gatling gun Congress this Monday fails to disclose any one who can say.

There has not been time to think.

Not even the most confident of the President's advisors would claim that definite results can be more than roughly estimated. Not even the President would claim it and he has been the one to catch all the idea balls thrown to him from many outfielders and probably knows that in the flurry not all the balls struck at him will be batted.

Depression has fanned a little, but its side is not all out.

No doubt the President would say that the country and not one political party elected him for action. As the sky is our witness we got it.

CREDIT IS ROOSEVELT'S

It knocked the breath out of veteran legislators. Some are wondering what to ask about. Editorial writers could not write fast enough to follow the whizz of the Roosevelt attack. The average citizen saw the Roosevelt hat producing not only rabbits but winged guinea pigs.

The President would say that all this was not his ticket, for it was written by the people and by the emergency. Instead of retreating all around the ring, the President, having been told to wade in, did it. He did it with brawn and brains and good nature, with bravery and not brashness.

None of his idea-scouts or official family can claim any considerable laurel from the President's own forehead as to this whirlwind leadership. In Washington it is fully realized that the people must hand him the credit for decision and action with an undercover discretion of no mean value to us.

CURB OWN POWERS

He has accepted fearful responsibility because there was no safe path to take. In taking powers he has been careful not to enlarge executive powers to deal with foreign affairs and thus has avoided alarming the country with fear of trick plays which might entangle us in the net of foreign intrigues and wars.

The godsend of protection in checks by the Senate and by the people's will has not been impaired. He has avoided in other cases taking powers which are dangerous. He has avoided taking any not necessary to deal with the flux of emergency by a tremendous administrative arm. On the whole, the President's own group must regard this opening like a siege rage as a tremendous achievement accomplished without undue violence to our traditions.

Congress today reports the brutal truth that it is not so sure. Even many legislators who ride on the band wagon are not certain that the ride is safe. Wiping their brows, they say in secret, "what have we gone and done?" few know.

Misgivings about constitutionality and property rights arise when citizens are forbidden to put their own pieces of metal in their pockets but have to swap them for steel engravings. The industrial bill almost says that if we own a sawmill we must join a syndicate or have the government close us down. And the government can say that its promise to pay is something else.

LOOK FOR SUCCESS

Furthermore, some doubt attempts to guarantee the prosperity of certain classes to pay for work for the idle, no matter how deserving, because no matter how willing we taxpayers may be there is a limit always on the source even of government income. Indeed, among thoughtful senators and representatives, now that the smoke of their will is about to blow away, there is a sense of awe.

On both sides of Government, however, there is the growing hope that this first Roosevelt attack will not bend our institutions too violently, too permanently, and, above all, without relieving our distress and our confusion.

Look away from legislation now will be the word from Washington. Fix your hopeful eyes upon results depending upon the incorruptibility, the courage, the capacity for administration.

Auto Injuries Fatal

Brockton, June 12 (AP)—Florence P. Donahue, 51, of Whitman, died in the hospital here from injuries received when he was struck by an auto in Whitman last Thursday.

Drop It!

Firearms are the chief prop of organized crime.

"Disarm the Underworld," say the police, "and the battle against racketeering is almost won. For a gangster without a gun is a cringing coward, a sneaking rat, a yellow weakling."

The conflict of State laws on the subject of the manufacture, sale and possession of dangerous weapons hampers the disarming process. Any gangster can buy a gun as easily as he would purchase a package of cigarettes.

States that have laws making illegal possession of weapons a crime destroy the effectiveness of the legislation by wholesale granting of permits. They are surrounded by States in which sale and possession are legalized. Other States have no laws on the subject.

The country knows of the ease with which the slayer of Mayor Cermak in the attack on President Roosevelt openly bought his weapon and ammunition in Florida.

Federal control of the manufacture, sale and possession of dangerous weapons, with its interdiction of interstate commerce, is the proper procedure to aid police in disarming the underworld. And it cannot come too soon.

LURES BLAMED IN KIDNAPING

audience. The brothers Buck, taken from the nearby jail, met their wives in the courtroom and kisses were exchanged.

McMath was present when trial began, accompanied by William V. Lee, his young associate in the boat-building business, who acted as official spokesman for the family during the three days of Pegg's absence last month when the nation's attention was focused on this district.

With them were William Kales, Detroit industrialist, Pegg's grandfather, and Harold Swayne, another business associate of McMath.

Pegg herself and her mother were not expected until later.

Harry W. L. Fox, Falmouth Heights merchant, was appointed foreman of the jury by Judge Edward F. Hanify. The other jurors are Harvey Field, mechanic, West Barnstable; Edward A. Nickerson, fisherman, Wellfleet; Oliver Studley, mason, Bass River; Freeman T. Ellis, Jr., farmer, Bass River; Stanley D. Trudeau, poultry farmer, Truro; Harold A. Thompson, plumber, South Harwich; Herbert A. Fish, painter, West Dennis; Howard G. Lumbert, carpenter, Centerville; Charles F. Moore, farmer, Orleans; Irving R. Thacher, carpenter, Yarmouth, and Paul R. Schroeter, barber, Buzzards Bay.

ONLY SEVEN CHALLENGES

One venireman, Elisha S. Bearse, was excused because he was related to the Bucks. Another, Herbert B. Jenkins, was excused because he thought he might be biased. He said, dryly, he had recently lost a child by death.

Defence used four preemptory challenges, the government three. Suddenly the box was filled and the trial was under way.

Sheriff Laughlin Crocker presented a figure of perspiring dignity, arrayed in full uniform of office with gold braid decorations and a stiff bosom shirt. His deputy is Police Chief Emulous E. Hall of Harwich, who will be an important witness.

Elias and Charles M. Berwick, counsel for Kenneth Buck, filed motion to quash the indictment against him on the ground that the jail pressing of the lower court charge was illegal. Judge Hanify denied the motion.

WITNESSES EXCLUDED

Willis F. Carlton, who represents Cyril, the older brother, said that much of his defense would rest upon cross examination of government witnesses and asked that they be excluded from court except as each was called to testify. This was agreed to.

Counsel for Kenneth announced that his client was ready to name two men as "master minds" and Atty. William Carleton for Cyril will defi the state to prove that his client was any but an innocent party, interested only in the safe return of Peggy to her parents.

Dist.-Atty. William C. Crossley said he had "no faith" in the contention of Kenneth, much of which was announced in a statement that was given reporters by Atty. Burwick.

Ex-Mayor Walker Views London Conference as Effort to Make World Safe for Humanity

The first article by James J. Walker, former Mayor of New York, engaged by International News Service to report the world economic conference for its client newspapers, follows:

By JAMES J. "JIMMY" WALKER

Copyright, 1933, by International News Service.

London, June 12 (INS)—Unaccustomed as I am to public writing, I am on my way to the 66-ring circus, generally known as the world economic conference, and to report it for International News Service.

This is my first—yes, and I know—it may be my last attempt as a scribe, but I'd like to make a good job of telling my American readers of the proceedings of the big end of brainy brothers. But I must do it in my own way, unaided by any tricks of the trade, so if you're going to string along with me you'll have to learn to take it as I had to take it for years.

I was not in town an hour before I realized that a reporter's job is no sinecure for me.

Every time I ask a question someone swaps me two for it; everyone I attempt to interview goes into reverse and interviews me—in fact, I am more reported against than reporting.

MANY POKER FACES

I am intensely interested and enthusiastically hopeful that some benefit will enure to humanity, irrespective of race, creed or color, as a result of the deliberations carried on in these meetings.

However, I don't hear any earsplitting cheers or optimism but there is no scarcity of poker faces all made up for a session of watchful waiting in spite of the world's greatest and widest depression, with its resultant unemployment, unstabilized currencies and depleted industrial and commercial activity.

There is one group that has a definite idea with no false modesty about telling it. It's made up of Americans abroad who want the well-known dollar, that had fallen to doughnuts, hydraulicked back to its position where it was all dough.

You can better understand their anxiety when you realize that when a dollar gets you 100 cents in America, the same dollar is worth only 80 cents over here. Of course, no one will run a temperature worrying about the good time Charleys traveling abroad, but it's a matter of importance, with which we may have to deal later, to the large commercial and industrial importers.

RELIEF FOR TAXPAYERS

But we can't release our minds from the misfortune of the ten million and more workless American men and women and their thirty million and more dependents.

I want to believe that this "peace conference" is destined to bring them some relief directly or indirectly. Not only in furtherance of the right to the full enjoyment of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, but in a tossing deferred relief to the overburdened taxpayer.

If the leading statesmen and the economic and financial experts in convention assembled cannot devise ways and means for the necessary relief, where shall we look?

In 1917, the United States of America sent over a million and a half of its best young blood—and 100,000 of them never returned—to make the world safe for democracy. For that purpose more than 15 billion dollars was spent during and after the war and all America asked for was a recognition . . . the principles contained in the Declaration of Independence.

And that's all it got—if it got that.

"SAFE FOR HUMANITY"

For in spite of it all, the country has since undergone its most terrible crisis and its people have known more widespread hardship than at any period of its history.

Now, 16 years later, half a dozen distinguished Americans have come to London to take their places in a peace conference, to war against depression and misfortune, and make the world safe for humanity, which is, after all, in the American opinion, about the same thing.

There is no reason why this should not be done if the purpose is approached in a sympathetic, unselfish, humanitarian way, with the 52 cards all placed face upward and the joker thrown away.

If it is not merely a match of wits, if it is not a contest of economy, if it is not for the percentage purse, if they come to lay the bricks of a new economic civilization and not to throw them; if they come to wash up their mistakes of the past and not to clean their dirty linen—the world will be the better for it.

If they have come to help and not to hinder, if they have come to co-operate and not struggle, it should be the beginning of a new day.

On the contrary, if they have come with a "come on and show me" expression, or an "eat your cake and have it" purpose, then the conference might as well have been held at the great wall of China.

But no more of this editorial stuff. Close as these sentiments must be to one who was the chief executive of the most cosmopolitan community throughout the history of mankind, I must get back to my job as a reporter.

Today the last of the 168 delegates convoked by the Council of the League of Nations, representing 66 countries, arrived in London to meet in the World Economic Conference, opening this afternoon at the Geological Museum.

Every local humorist and cartoonist has taken a shot—some funny and some very unfunny—at the idea of a conference in a museum. It is not hard to imagine what the New York columnists would do to a conference meeting in Grant's tomb.

"JIMMY WON'T BE LATE"

However, his majesty the King of England journeys from Windsor Castle to perform the opening ceremony and make the assembled delegates an address of welcome, which, thanks to the world's greatest phenomenon, jet lag, is separated by the Atlantic Ocean, hear at the same time.

Following the King, J. Ramsay MacDonald, prime minister of England, whom I had the distinction of receiving in New York on two different occasions, presides and will address the delegates.

I am permitted to report what may please you more than it does your nervous correspondent: the sessions will open at 10.30 in the morning and recess at 1 o'clock until 2.30, when they will continue until 6, and since I have dared to editorialize and attempt to report I am going to risk one prophecy, never before indulged in by a cub reporter, and it is this:

Walker will not be late.

Victory for U. S. in Parley Predicted

London, June 12 (INS)—"The United States is prepared to go a long way to make the conference a success, but if there is a stalemate, we will win."

This was the declaration made today by a member of the American delegation shortly before the World Economic Conference convened for its opening session.

Beer's Return Fails to Bring Back Old-Time Free Lunch

The free lunch, happy remembrance of the old days, has returned in Chicago—but nowhere in Boston could a free lunch be found today.

When the Massachusetts beer laws were drawn up in April, every attempt to avoid a return of the old-time saloon was made, and to this end it was required that a holder of a license to sell beer for consumption on the premises must have a properly equipped kitchen.

The idea was to limit the sale of beer for consumption on the premises to places which sold food.

But, no matter how this idea has worked out, no free lunch has popped up yet in Boston. Pretzels, cheese crackers and the like are dished up sparingly, but these do not constitute a free lunch. They are only teasers. You can't yet go over to the end of the bar, saw off a slab of ham, slap it between two pieces of bread, take a pickle or a pickled egg or a pig's foot or the like and wash it all down with foaming brew.

U. S., BRITAIN AND FRANCE IN GOLD PACT; DEBTS BANNED

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Geological Museum, London, June 12 (INS)—With the World Economic Conference sent on its way by a stirring plea for international co-operation from King George, Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald this afternoon seized the first opportunity to throw the controversial subject of foreign debts into the deliberations.

Stabilization of the major currencies within a wide range was later forecast as the first definite accomplishment of the conference.

U. S. JOINS MOVE

This was the expectation of high financial authorities close to the British delegation. These experts said that as a result of negotiations today at the British treasury among Americans, British and French representatives it was agreed that stabilization could be arranged for the duration of the conference.

A wide range would be necessary, it was said, in order to conciliate opposing views.

The three-power banking session at the Treasury was held with the utmost secrecy.

The French are most eager to get the dollar and the British pound stabilized, and it was understood they were willing to assist the efforts of London and Washington by placing at the disposal of the Federal Reserve Bank whatever sums in francs might be needed in order to keep the Paris market within a determined range.

MacDonald said something must be done about the debts without delay. He called for settlement of this vexed question "once for all in the light of present world conditions."

Feeling was evident among the United States delegates that this bringing in of the debts, specifically excluded from the conference by the Washington government, was not in good taste and might stiffen sentiment in the United States against revision.

"Behind the subjects I have mentioned," he said, "is another to the front rank of importance.

CAN'T DISCUSS WAR DEBTS

"It cannot be dealt with here, because obviously this conference is not constituted in such a way to enable it to consider or settle the matter.

"I refer to the subject of war debts, which must be dealt with before every obstacle to general recovery is removed, and it must be taken up without delay by nations concerned."

The treaty of Lausanne has been completed and this vexed question (reparations) has been settled once and for all in the light of present world conditions.

(Editor's Note: The Lausanne treaty reduced German reparations by 90 per cent.)

"This conference is the sequel to the work done at Lausanne when a conditional agreement on how to deal with war debts and reparations saved Europe from immediate financial collapse."

Britain's policy, as enunciated by MacDonald, will be to drive the Lausanne agreement straight through the world economic conference.

As the Lausanne treaty settled reparations at ten cents on the dollar, MacDonald's plain inference was that the international debts should be similarly settled.

The premier's reference to the debts, which the people of the United States are not empowered to discuss, came as a surprise to the American representatives, but they sat and listened attentively with masked faces.

There was a burst of applause, however, from the nations which signed the treaty of Lausanne.

MacDonald called the attention of the delegates just as had King George, who departed from precedent by addressing the conference in both English and French. Like the monarch, MacDonald bore heavily upon what the depression has done in the way of world suffering, privation and unemployment, but his debt bombshell was the highlight of the speech.

ALL OR NONE BETTERED

"The economic life of the world for years has been suffering from a decline which has closed factories, limited employments, reduced the standard of living and brought some states to the verge of bankruptcy," said MacDonald.

"If the world is left to right itself without international effort and agreement how long is the recovery to be?

"No one who has surveyed the facts and looked at their progress for the last few years can doubt that a purely national economic policy in the modern world is one which by improverishing other nations impoverishes those who pursue it.

"No nation can permanently enrich itself at the expense of others. Mutual enrichment is a condition of individual enrichment."

In his opening remarks, King George observed that no other monarch in history had ever had the opportunity of welcoming two many delegates to an international conference.

An exposition of the American viewpoint shortly before the conference opened gave four specific ways for attacking high tariffs, and expressed "faith that some progress will be made of a reasonably satisfactory nature."

Secretary of State Cordell Hull told newspaper correspondents he believed this generation "is just a little more capable of grappling with these difficulties than any that have gone before."

The specific tariff proposals Mr. Hull said the conference might consider are:

First, general revision simultaneously through various governments and parliaments.

Second, a small horizontal reduction as a preliminary step.

Third, regional agreements between neighbor nations, such as that in effect between Holland, Belgium and Luxembourg.

Fourth, purely bilateral tariff bargaining.

Hull was less specific on the monetary aspects of the American program. Monetary stabilization, he said, may involve political action as well as approval by central banks.

The American was the first important delegation to enter the hall, arriving an hour before the opening. Senator Key Pittman was not among them. It had been said illness would keep him from attending.

AMERICANS WELCOMED

The tall, dark-haired Mrs. Hull went to the chamber for distinguished visitors, the only American woman honored by admission.

Nearly a score of American delegates and experts took places on the floor although seats were not available for a half a dozen of them.

Six seats in the central section reserved for the United States delegates were occupied by Mr. Hull, James M. Cox, Representative Sam D. McReynolds, Ralph W. Morrison, William C. Bullitt and James P. Warburg. Senator Couzens, also a delegate, arrives tomorrow.

The American delegates scarcely had taken their seats when Viscount Kikujiro Ishii of Japan went to greet them, bowing low.

The hall gradually filled with black-coated men and a sprinkling of women. The delegates from the Hedjaz gave a touch of colorful relief in their long, golden robes with white headdresses adorned with gold and black bands. The room finally resounded with a babel of tongues.

A total of 165 delegates representing 66 civilized nations heard King George, in an address broadcast throughout the world, send the momentous conference on its way promptly at 3 p. m. (10 a. m. E.D.T.) and it adjourned after the two addresses until tomorrow.

TAX REVENUE IS SHOWING BIG

By ROBERT S. THORNBURGH,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Washington, June 12 (INS)—The sensational increase in miscellaneous internal revenue collections, which include the tobacco, beer and other sales and stamp taxes, indicated today that, for a full year's operation on the present basis, more than $1,500,000,000 would be obtained from that source.

Approximately $850,000,000 will be received from these sources for the fiscal year ended June 30. This is contrasted to about $770,000,000 for income taxes. In the 1932 fiscal year the miscellaneous collection was $503,000,000 and from income taxes $1,057,000,000.

The manufacturers' sales taxes, and other new levies of the 1932 revenue act went into effect in July, 1932. Revenue from most of the taxes were satisfactory despite the low estate of business. Gradually the miscellaneous taxes paced the income taxes until they now show an excess of nearly $200,000,000 although the heavily boosted income tax rate were effective beginning with the March payment.

U. S. Parley Envoy Puffs Big Cigar

London, June 12—The American delegation was among early arrivals in the hall for the World Economic Conference. Senator Key Pittman, who is ill, was absent. All Americans were in formal morning attire and Ralph W. Morrison puffed calmly on a big cigar.

Every desk bore signs: "Do Not Smoke!" but Morrison paid them no heed and continued to smoke.

Agriculture Head Has Cabinet All His Own

Washington, June 12—Secretary of Agriculture Wallace has acquired a cabinet of his own but there is a serious shortage of titles for its members.

Every noon, and sometimes twice a day, the "little cabinet" assembles in the office of the secretary to go over developments in their plans for administration of the farm adjustment Act. The group passes on subjects ranging from plans for applying the corn-hog contract, to the difficult task of selecting titles for the numerous aides the administrators are acquiring.

CONGRESS NEAR SESSION'S END

Washington, June 12 (AP)—Congressional adjournment by mid-week at the latest was the goal of Democratic chieftains today.

The industrial recovery, veterans compensation and deficiency appropriations measures completed the triple threat to adjournment in the Senate, but leaders said there was good chance of quitting before Wednesday unless a filibuster develops.

Senator Vanderberg (R., Mich.) moved to discharge the judiciary committee from consideration of the city bankruptcy relief bill, but met immediate objections from Robinson of Arkansas, Democratic leader.

In the House a compromise on the Glass-Steagall banking reform bill dispute appeared probable as conferees made an 11th hour attempt for agreement following a conference with President Roosevelt.

COURT RELUCTANT TO BAR MOTHER AT RICH GIRL'S BRIDAL

DIVORCEE MAY BE SPECTATOR AT BIG WEDDING

Father and Heiress Fear a Scene When Miss Swain Weds

Possibility that the divorced mother of Miss Hester Swain may be allowed to attend the wedding of her daughter next Friday in the Church of the Advent loomed today when Judge Qua, in superior court, expressed reluctance to bar the mother by court order.

Judge Qua finally took under advisement the petition of the girl and her father, Charles B. Swain of Winchester, that the divorced mother be restrained by injunction from entering the church.

Father and daughter claimed in their petition that the mother undoubtedly would create a scene and "possible public scandal," but Judge Qua, before taking the petition under advisement, suggested that a policeman at the door ought to be sufficient.

COURT FOR MOTHERS

Counsel for the petitioners said they did not believe this to be enough, and Atty. C. C. Barton declared:

"We feel that it will be one of the most important days in the life of Miss Swain and that she is entitled to a certain decorum and dignity on such an occasion."

"What troubles the court," said Judge Qua, "is the thought of issuing an order against a mother. According to the petition, the petitioners base their plea entirely in anticipation. There doesn't appear to be any specific facts or proof that anything such as feared will happen.

"The Strong-Walthers case cited by counsel differs in that proof was offered of specific annoyances over a long period. It would appear that a police officer at the door would have the desired effect.

Atty. Barton—Knowing the character of the defendant and from talks and letters the petitioners feel that unpleasant developments are not only imminent but certain.

THEY FEAR SCENE

Judge Qua—Is this to be a public ceremony?

Atty. Barton—It is to be a church ceremony, a wedding.

Judge Qua—Open to the public?

Atty. Barton—Guests are to be invited, but as in all weddings we suppose some of the public may wander in. However, we feel that in view of the fact that the church has been engaged by Miss Swain for Friday, that it is for the time being to be her property with the same property rights that she would enjoy in her home.

"I would like to state that there has been no filial relations between Miss Swain and the mother since the divorce in 1919 when she went to live with her father. We also suggest that the property rights of persons will in no way be injured by a restraining order."

Judge Qua—The court has no knowledge of the church policy in the matter, nor does he care to go as to saying who or who shall not enter.

The court suggested that Mrs. Swain might be put under bonds to keep the peace but Attorney Barton said his clients felt that Miss Swain's personal rights demanded an injunction.

World's Fair Plane's Wreckage -:- Fiery Tomb of 9 Sightseers

By telephoto from Chicago comes this picture of the wreckage of the giant Sikorsky amphibian in which seven World's Fair visitors, the pilot and mechanic perished. The big ship attempted to land at the exposition ramp in Lake Michigan. As it struck the choppy water, one of the wing pontoons crumpled. Rather than taxi to shore, the pilot put the ship back into the air in an attempt to land at Sky Harbor, northwest of the city. Over Glenview, within sight of the airport, the ship's right wing broke off. From an altitude of only 600 feet the plane crashed into a field. Almost instantly its gas tanks exploded. Fire made identification of victims almost impossible. One was Edward M. Fay—a former Brookline man. (International News Photos.)

11TH JUROR IN SOLOMON DEATH CASE IS PICKED

Record Set as 307 Are Examined Without Finishing Panel

The eleventh juror was obtained today for the "King" Solomon murder trial which started a week ago today.

John J. Horrigan, laborer, of Mt. Vernon st., Charlestown, the 275th man called, was accepted. Afterward, 32 more were called without completing the jury, making a total of 307 examined.

The trial set a record when the 242d man was called without filling the jury-box. Judge Beaudreau today began calling on the special list of men especially drawn by the City Council last week, when it was apparent the regular list would be exhausted.

Although opposition to capital punishment was the chief stumbling block last week, the foremost excuse today was that a definite opinion had been formed on the guilt or innocence of the accused, John T. O'Donnell, John J. Burke and Frank Karlonas.

Police regulations were stricter today than at any time last week. In addition to the check being made on persons seeking to pass from the courthouse corridor to the railed-off enclosure near the courtroom, police had a chain stretched across a gap in another rail, in front of the courtroom doors.

Sixty-seven prospective jurors were examined today, one being accepted, 41 excused, 13 challenged by the defense and 12 challenged by the Commonwealth. The defendants together had nine challenges left, the state about twice as many.

Two men incurred the displeasure of Judge Beaudreau. One was John J. Burns, Magazine st., Roxbury, who tried to answer before the judge finished his question about preconceived opinion.

"You are l ma much of a hurry to disqualify yourself, that you cannot wait until the end of my question," said Judge Beaudreau. "Get out!"

John J. Sheehan, William st., Dorchester, testified he knew two of the defense lawyers and also Asst. Dist.-Atty. Frederick T. Doyle, the prosecutor.

"I would have to take the word of Fred Doyle as against defense counsel," said Sheehan.

"Why?" asked Judge dBeaudreau.

"Because," said Sheehan, "I think Doyle is a very good prosecutor," u

Sheehan started to walk away, laughing.

"Wait a minute," said the court. "You go and sit in the front row awhile. I'm not goin gto excuse you yet."

SUSPECT LOOKS LIKE COLLINGS' SLAYER

Burglar Partially Identified by Wife of Mystery Victim

Samford, Ct., June 12 (AP)—The unsolved midnight slaying of Benjamin P. Collings, 38-year-old Samford yachtsman and engineer, was dramatically revived today as his widow told police a confessed burglar greatly resembled one of the two men who in 1931 beat and bound her husband and then threw him into Long Island Sound.

Frank Dreger, 51, of New York, was described by Mrs. Collings as one whose profile "is just like that of the old man who boarded our yacht."

Herself abducted from the Collings yacht Penguin after seeing her husband slain, Mrs. Collings confronted Dreger at Stamford police headquarters.

HIS PROFILE, SHE SAYS

"That's the profile of the older man," she said. I'll never forl get the chin and nose of the old man who boarded our cat. I've looked at an scene of men arrested in various parts of the country since 1931 and this is the only one who resemled in the least the old man who came on our boat."

Joseph Guarino, 20, of New York, arrested in Darien with Dreger, also was paraded before Mrs. Collings. She said he was too stout to fit the description of the younger man who boarded the Penguin.

Dreger, who told police he had served sentences totalling 22½ years in Sing Sing and Auburn prisons in New York, was not told why he was brought to Stamford from Darien to be examined by Mrs. Collings.

CHECK FINGERPRINTS

The Penguin was found adrift in Long Island Sound by a yachtsman after the slaying. Collins' five-year-old daughter, Barbara, was found aboard the craft. Several hours later, Mrs. Collins was found on an anchored yacht off Coopers Bluff, L. I., she told police the slayers transferred her from the Penguin to the second yacht.

Dreger said he had not been on Long Island since 1900, but that he was in New York in August and September of 1931. Collings was slain September 9.

Fingerprints taken from the Penguin will be checked against Dreger's.

B. U. GIRL BRIDE OF TEACHER

A teacher-and-pupil romance at Boston University was climaxed today in Robinson Memorial chapel of Boston University, with the marriage of George Makechnie, 27, of Everett, and Miss Anna Louise Schonland, 23, of Lawrence.

The wedding ceremony, in the presence of the immediate families, took place only a few hours after Makechnie, instructor and assistant to the dean in the Sargent school of physical education, had handed her sheepskin to Miss Schonland in the Boston Arena.

Makechnie was graduated from Boston University in 1929, and his bride has been in his classes this term and last.

The marriage was performed by Rev. C. Guy Robbins of the Universalist Church in Lawrence.

Good Deeds Soon Forgotten, Legion Parade Hero Learns

Little more than two years ago, a patrolman was moved from Hyde Park to Back Bay so extra pay details might aid him in support of 11 children, who then were motherless for five months.

He won the reward because he gave his luncheon to several hungry children who were watching the American Legion parade.

Today, the same officer reported to Jamaica Plain station where there are little or no extra pay details. He had to make way for young officers who were refused their step rate increase in pay—many of them single.

He is Magnus T. Nelson, who is both mother and father to the 11 children, whose ages range from 6 to 21.

Commissioner Hultman signed the order that transferred him in October, 1930. The order was accompanied by the commissioner's compliments on the officer's act at the parade.

Commissioner Hultman also signed the order that sent him away from the post in which he might make a few dollars to add to the weekly salary of $40.27, less the 15 per cent pay cut—which is $34.23—less $1.37 for pension—which is $32.86; less 45 cents for police relief and sick benefit—which is $32.41.

The Nelson home was plunged into despair at 7 Merlin st., Dorchester. The family was doing pretty well, even though the father had to be away a lot to make the extra money—until the order came that sent him to Jamaica Plain.

There's a lady in Weymouth to whom the transfer of Nelson is also of deep interest. She is Mrs. Julia York, and it was several of her five children who shared Patrolman Nelson's lunch as the legionnaires marched by.

Mrs. York knew Nelson then as "Officer 1815." He was on special duty at the parade on assignment from the Hyde Park Station where his heart went out to the hungry children.

His was a good act in 1930—worthy of commendation and a chance to make extra pay.

But this is 1933—the days when good acts apparently are easily forgotten.

BROOKLINE MAN 9 DIE IN CRASH

Chicago, June 12 (INS)—Investigators today blamed a damaged wing for the crash of a World's Fair sight-seeing plane which fell to earth near Glenview and burst into flames, burning to death seven passengers and two of the crew.

So badly were the occupants burned that identification of the dead was extremely difficult. No register of the passengers was taken before the flight. Two of the dead passengers were women.

The known dead:

Pilot Carl Vickery 36, Chicago.
Harrington Jacobs, 26, Chicago, the mechanic.
Edward M. Fay, Chicago, formerly of Brookline, Mass.
Joseph G. Robinson, 21, New York City.
Edward G. Schaller, 21, Storm Lake, Ia.

Of the other four victims one was tentatively identified from safety deposit box keys as Mrs. Ida Goodwin, of Hewitt, L. I.

HODSDON JAILED AS FIREBUG

Albert Hodsdon, former city collector of Gloucester, the man who conceived an arson conspiracy which ended in the death of one of the conspirators and sent a second to an insane asylum, was sentenced to six months in the House of Correction in Salem court today.

Matthew Joyce, one of the surviving defendants, was placed on probation for two years, and the sentencing of Joseph Fronterio was continued until the court rules on an appeal of Maurice Mansell, another defendant, who got four to five years last week.

Joseph Gallardo of South Boston, whose clothing was set afaire by the blaze which destroyed Hodsdon's home last February, died at Boston City Hospital several days later.

Joseph Costello, also of South Boston, was committed to Danvers Asylum.

Hodsdon's home was destroyed on the night of Feb. 20. He had arranged with an arsonist ring to do the job as he was in need of money.

Next Time He'll Let Police Boat Alone

When you want to steal something, don't steal a boat, because you can't get very far away with it. And if you must steal a boat don't steal one owned by the police.

That was the lesson learned in Quincy court today by Thomas W. O'Brine, 19, Waverly st., Roxbury. O'Brine took a row for himself on Houghton's pond in the Blue Hill reservation yesterday and came back to find himself under arrest for misappropriating the property of the Metropolitan District Police.

Judge Albert filed the case.

3 HURT, DRIVER HELD IN CRASH

An allegedly misappropriated car containing three couples crashed into a truck on the state highway in Lincoln, near Lexington, early today, with resultant minor injuries to a youth and two girls, and the arrest of two brothers.

Gertrude Burns, 19, and her sister, Winnie, 18, both of Fairmont ave., Cambridge, and George Janes, 18, of Andrew st., Cambridge, were hurt. With an unidentified third girl and Lawrence and Walter Bonnett, brothers, of Sidney st., Cambridge, they were in the car of Ruth L. Schwartz of 74 Egmont st., Brookline, which had been left in a garage where one of the Bonnett youths works. The car hit a truck driven by Frank E. Lowell of Mora st., Dorchester, who was not hurt.

Lawrence Bonnett was charged with leaving the scene of an accident, driving to endanger and using a car without authority. His brother was arrested on the latter charge alone.

Auto Stolen in Arlington in 1931 Found in Palestine

Well, the world gets dizzier all the time, and you could have knocked the police over with a 8.2 breath today when they learned that an automobile stolen in Arlington in December, 1931, had been recovered in Palestine.

This is considered an all-time record for something or other, and the police are trying to find some place to hang it up.

POLICE HEADS IN A CLASH OVER TRANSFERS

Commissioner Hultman and Capt. Ferley Skillings of the Back Bay police division completely "crossed signals" today when the shakeup of 223 patrolmen and superiors went into effect at morning roll call.

Transfer of 35 patrolmen to the important Back Bay post, many of them with little experience, was explained last week by Commissioner Hultman as a move to open the way to details for those whose step-rate pay raise was denied by Mayor Curley.

The Boston Evening American told the real reason last week. The changes were chiefly due to flagrant conditions discovered in the South Boston and Back Bay divisions and to the exposure of gang activities by this newspaper.

Today, Capt. Skillings told his new charges to "get that detail business out of your heads," and warned them that the most such details could average in a year was 53 a week.

Signs of discontent over the shift were in evidence in all of the stations affected, and at Milk st. one patrolman fired three shots out of a window at the conclusion of a "fight talk" by Deputy Supt. Martin King.

When Deputy King asked a sergeant what the noise was, the sergeant, who had listened to anything but complimentary remarks of his men during the talk, and who knew what the noise was, tactfully answered, "It must have been firecrackers."

OVER-RATED DIVISION

Capt. Skillings broke into his vacation for the second time to receive the new men. He read the roll call that required 25 minutes, during which Patrolman Patrick McManus, one of the regular men at the station, fell into a dead faint from the heat.

"This is an overrated division," said Capt. Skillings after roll call.

"If you men think there is a lot of money in paid details here you are sadly mistaken. At the most they average about $12 a month in the course of a year, or about $3 a week.

"Every racketeer, gunman and others of bad reputation are supposed to live on the division. Some of them do live here but they don't do business here. You may be friendly with them but I want no hob-nob with them.

ALPHABETICAL ORDER

"There will be no favoritism but there'll be no fooling either. Above all, though, get that detail business out of your heads. Details will be given out in alphabetical order and no one will get rich."

Supt. Crowley followed the captain and urged that the men transferred out of the division feel that no stigma was attached to their shift.

"You can make good in any station," were his parting words.

Capt. Skillings' first order was the assignment of Sergt. Maurice Sullivan and Special Officers Roy Bates and Maurice Sheehy to special duty in plain clothes. This was to replace his old squad, all of whom had been transferred.

A transfer nearly as large took place at the Milk st. station where downtown stalwarts were transferred in an effort to curb the activities of the Gustin gang.

At the Athens st. station, South Boston, to which 17 new men, many from Stations 16, were assigned today, Deputy Supt. Martin King gave a "fight talk" to the new men.

"I want you to understand that your transfer is no reflection on your ability. All I ask is that you co-operate with your division commander," he said.

Heir to Millions Held as Mother's Slayer

Flint, Mich., June 12 (INS)—Baife Macdonald, 17, heir to a two-million dollar fortune, confessed today the murder of his mother, according to Chief of Detectives Edward S. Tewhey.

The boy broke, according to police, when confronted with the story of his pal, William Terwiltorney-general; John H. Fahey, waiting to start a planned runaway trip.

Fire Threatens Quebec Village

Val Alain, Que., June 12 (AP)—Forest fires still threatened Val Alain and nearby Lotbiniere County villages early today. Volunteer fire fighters joined with forest rangers, and firemen had to yield one house on the outskirts of Val Alain to the flames, but were confident of holding the fire to the edge of the village. All women and children have been evacuated to Laurier and Villeroy.

Dedham Youth Injured by Fall

X-ray photographs will determine today whether Henry Jaworsky, nine, of Rochester st., South End, suffered a fracture of the right leg in a fall from a tree he was climbing in Dedham yesterday. The boy was brought to City Hospital by his father last night and was ordered held overnight when X-ray photos were taken.

"PROTESTANTISM NEEDS NEW IDEAS!"

DR. JAMES GORDON GILKEY — PRES. HENRY LEFAVOUR

Protestantism must cut loose from the century-old ideas of writers of the Scriptures to keep pace with the modern tempo, Dr. James Gordon Gilkey of South Congregational Church, Springfield, told Simmons College graduates. The 28th annual commencement marked the retirement of President Henry Lefavour, head of the school since its foundation thirty-two years ago. (Boston American photo.)

Yes, All Days Are "Dog Days," in Newton These Days!

It's a dull day, indeed, that sees no new dog news in Newton.

Two new cases of rabies among dogs were discovered there today. One was the dog that recently bit its owner, Mrs. Mary Barry, of 15 Westchester st. She is taking the Pasteur treatment. The other dog, owned by John Watters of Marlboro st., didn't bite anybody.

Dog catchers seized three unlicensed dogs in Cook st. Soon after the seizure, they became five. Then they became four, as one new-born puppy died.

Nicholas Del Vecchio of 40 Saxon st. was fined $20 for keeping a biting dog. The fine was suspended on condition he get rid of the dog. He said he will give it away if he can find anyone to take a biting dog.

The fourth immunization clinic was held this afternoon in the high school drill hall, with scores of owners taking their dogs to be inoculated. More than 1200 have been, but some 2200 remain untreated, and, unless they are immunized, the recently enacted 30-day restraining order will be extended.

New Bedford, June 12—Mrs. Rose Henner, 39, attempted suicide today by drinking poison in her bedroom. She screamed and attracted the attention of her husband, who notified police. At St. Luke's Hospital her name was placed on the danger list.

Worcester, Mass., June 12 (AP)—Ernest J. Bennett, 23, of Fitchburg, was instantly killed, and his motorcycle companion, Thomas Yachynsky, 58, of Lewiston, Me., was seriously injured, when Bennett's truck struck a pole and overturned.

15-Year "Peace" Vividly Noted in New Book

By Gilbert Seldes

One of the less satisfactory ways to begin a conversation with me is to assure me that you like my book, "You Can't Print That," very much; I am very likely to reply that you do not and to walk away without explaining that: what you like is my brother's book, "You Can't Print That." His name is George Seldes, and, hereafter, the book to talk about is "World Panorama," which he has just published. It is a standing rule of this column not to review or give publicity to any outside work of its writer; but I cannot see how to keep out my carefully studied opinion that "World Panorama" is an exceptionally fine work, considering it merely accidental that a member of my family should have written it. I might bring in the fact that I had a very low opinion of my brother's earlier works, but fortunately I was not writing a daily column when they were published, so I wasn't obliged to make my opinion public. This time he has accomplished the dream of every good foreign correspondent: he has written a book in which everything that has happened since the Armistice is reported, put into relation to everything else, and made intensely entertaining.

Gilbert Seldes

I say everything has been put in, because I cannot think of anything omitted. Under J, in the index, I discovered Jazz, Jehol, Pussyfoot Johnson, Hiram Johnson, Henry Arthur Jones and Bobby Jones, James Joyce and Peggy Joyce—and he has selected the best thing to put down about each one of them. You will find what Einstein really thinks about pacifism and how Einstein couldn't make change in a Berlin subway, but had to count on his fingers. You will discover the truth about Mussolini's famous "march on Rome" (but don't believe the picture; believe the text) and what Mussolini thinks about straw hats.

He has found the little illuminating event to make his pages gay even when he is writing about revolutions and massacres. He has managed a special kind of sloofness and impartiality, probably because it does not matter to him what dictator throws him out of the country. When he was a foreign correspondent he annoyed d'Annunzio in Fiume, the bosses of Rumania, the GPU in Russia, and Mussolini himself; he has been driven out of more countries, for writing what the rulers didn't like, than any other correspondent. And he has had a fairly good time. Now he has communicated not his adventures (they appeared in his earlier books) but his observations. They are quick reading. (Little, Brown publishes the book.)

For a picture of Europe as the result of these fifteen years, turn to "Little Man, What Now?" by Hans Fallada. It is a German book, it has nothing to do with world events, it is about two desperately young people, the life they lead, the jobs they get and lose, the baby they worry over, and the remnant of integrity and honor which no poverty can destroy. And it is Europe, in one important aspect. Neither Communist nor Hitlerite, the book is about human beings, and it is very moving.

The Penneberg never have any money, but there were months when the boy's shady mother gave them a room and he had a job and Bunny, expecting her first child, had set her heart on a dressing-table seen in a shop-window. So when a month's pay comes, Penneberg buys it—with almost every cent he has in the world. Perhaps only those who have been poor will get the full throb of feeling in such a scene; perhaps that includes enough human beings, by now.

Or, a later scene: in the department store where Penneberg works, a quota system has been established, and if a salesman fails below, he is discharged. The gentle Penneberg is under his quota on the 30th of September; a famous movie comedian enters and, pleased at being recognized, goes through piles of clothes with the little salesman; but he has no intention of buying. Penneberg, in desperation, pleads with him: a department head comes by; Penneberg is fined for displeasing a valued customer.

I fancy the class conscious workers will despise Penneberg, because he is so gentle. At the end he is tempted to go stealing wood, but there his wife rebels. And at the end there is a slight sketch of the broken Penneberg (about twenty-two, then) so dilapidated, so defeated, that the policeman on the great Friedrichstrasse orders him to move on. "Suddenly Penneberg understood . . . that he was outside it all, that he no longer belonged here . . . he had slipped into the abyss, and was engulfed." That is a little more sinister-sounding than any doctrine of revolution. (Simon and Schuster are the publishers.)

B. C. GRADS BACK FOR ALUMNI DAY

Alumni Day was celebrated at Boston College today as part of the annual Commencement program with graduates of the Chestnut Hill college returning from all parts of the country.

The day was featured by the second game of the Holy Cross-B. C. baseball series on Alumni Field. Following, election of the various officers took place in the Science Building.

Among the members of the class of '93, holding their 40th reunion, were the only two graduates of the college ever to be elected to Congress, J. F. O'Connell and John J. Douglass, the latter now serving from East Boston.

The seniors will hold their class day exercises at the Heights, with the planting of the class tree, reciting of the class ode, history and prophecy in the Library Auditorium. Graduation will be held on Wednesday, with the conferring of the degrees by his Eminence, Cardinal O'Connell.

GILKEY WARNS PROTESTANTS

Protestantism will have to cut loose from ideas developed centuries ago by writers of the Bible and which are no longer sufficient on which to base present-day religious education, the Rev. James Gordon Gilkey, pastor of the South Congregational Church, Springfield, told the graduating class at Simmons College today.

Dr. Gilkey was the principal speaker at the 28th annual commencement exercises which marked the retirement of President Henry Lefavour, who headed the college since its foundation in 1901.

The commencement exercises were held in the auditorium of the college at Longwood ave. and the Riverway, with about 400 in attendance in addition to the 339 who received degrees and 52 recipients of certificates.

The senior class, numbering 232, will hold a farewell supper at the college tonight.

Last Moves Made to Save Slayers

Final plans to save the lives of Herman "Red" Snyder and James A. Donnellon, due to die this week for the slaying of James M. Kiley, Somerville gas station proprietor, will be made today at a conference of their attorneys. An appeal to the Supreme Court and a last plea for reprieve by Gov. Ely are two of the matters to be considered.

Mattern Hops Next to Nome

Moscow, June 12 (AP)—Jimmie Mattern caught up on badly needed sleep today at Khabarovsk, Siberia, while his plane was being prepared for the transpacific hop of his flight around the world.

So tired was the American when he landed at 3:25 a. m. Sunday (7:25 a. m. Saturday E. S. T.) he immediately went to sleep and gave no chance to ask about his plans for the next take off—for Nome, Alaska.

Four vessels in the Bering sea, nearing Nome, were ready to relay all messages about the daring Texas flier.

The northern sun shines 24 hours a day at this time of year, an aid to Mattern's long hop.

On arrival in Khabarovsk he was three days behind the pace set by Wiley Post and Harold Gatty in 1931, and had given up challenging their mark of seven days, 15 hours and 51 minutes. They, however, remained in Khabarovsk more than a day, so Mattern can establish a solo record comparing favorably with their time.

At 1:55 a. m. Saturday, he left Beloye, Siberia, more than 1450 miles inland, and passed over Rukhlovo at 9:15 a. m. Saturday, Moscow time. The latter place is 720 miles from Khabarovsk, and he stopped enroute at Sofisk.

He lost his way soon after leaving Rukhlovo, mistaking the Zea river for the Amur. He remained at Sofisk to get his bearings and the delay cost him many hours.

Col. Knox Guest at Ad Club "Windup"

Col. Frank Knox will be the guest speaker today at the Advertising Club wind-up luncheon of the year, his subject to be "Whither are we going?"

Col. Knox, a native of Boston, gained his early journalistic experience in Michigan where he helped to make the Sault Ste. Marie News one of the best known papers in that state. In 1912 he helped found The Leader in Manchester, N. H.

In 1927 he became publisher of the Boston American, Boston Daily Advertiser and Boston Sunday Advertiser and later general manager of all Hearst Newspapers. In 1931 with Theodore T. Ellis of Worcester he acquired controlling interest in the Chicago Daily News.

Recess Committee to Hear Lowell Case

Washington, June 12 (INS)—Investigation of the impeachment charges again federal Judge Lowell of Boston, who refused to send George Crawford, Negro, to Virginia for trial, probably will be conducted by a House judiciary subcommittee during the summer recess of Congress, Chairman Sumners (D.) of Texas of the committee said today.

NEW FIGHT TO LIMIT VET CUT

Washington, June 12 (AP)—Thrusting the veterans' question squarely before the Senate as leaders drove for adjournment, Senator Cutting (R.), New Mexico, today opened a fight for a substitute for the House-administration compromise on relief payments to former soldiers.

In urging the substitute, which he is advocating with Senator Steiwer (R.), Oregon, Cutting said he intended to move to instruct Senate conferees on the independent offices bill containing the veterans' provision "to insist" on the substitute proposal.

The Cutting-Steiwer plan seeks to stipulate by law some of the promises contained in President Roosevelt's letter to the House Democratic steering committee to take care of the so-called presumptive cases, and provides that reductions to veterans injured in service shall be limited to 25 per cent, as originally approved by the Senate.

ELY IN AIR PLEA FOR REPEAL

By BERNARD J. DOHERTY

Victory by a wide margin for the repeal cause is certain in tomorrow's special state-wide election.

The campaign for the election of all 48 delegates in the 15 Congressional districts pledged to ratification of the Eighteenth Amendment in the constitutional convention, will be brought to a close tonight.

Over three radio stations speakers will urge citizens to exercise their right to vote. Lt. Gov. Gaspar G. Bacon speaks at 7:30 from WEEI. B. Loring Young, former Speaker of the House, speaks at 8:30, station WBZ, and Mrs. Robert W. Lovett, station WNAC at 6:50. Young and Mrs. Lovett are candidates for repeal.

Joseph A. Maynard, chairman of the Democratic State Committee, is confident that the people of the state will seize upon this, their first chance in 13 years, to express themselves decisively upon prohibition.

In a statement issued, Maynard expresses entire confidence that if the voters go to the polls all 45 wet delegates will be elected by overwhelming majorities and that the Old Bay State will be the 11th in the Union to register for repeal.

The thought expressed by Chairman Maynard is warmly seconded by Lieut.-Gov. Gaspar G. Bacon and other Republican leaders

Mexican Labor Head Balks at Tariff Cut

Mexico City, June 12 (AP)—Opposition to tariff revision for Mexico on the grounds it would be harmful to industry and labor interest was expressed here by Fidelio Leon, secretary-general of the Crom, Mexican labor group, before the seventh Labor Party convention.

Leon asked that a memorial be passed asking the President to instruct Mexico's delegation to the World Economic Conference not to lower Mexican tariffs.

NOTHING is permitted to stand in the way of an emergency call.

Operators always alert. Level-headed supervisors lending aid. Every facility instantly at your service if you only tell us WHAT and WHERE.

Is it fire? A doctor? Police!

With telephone bells still echoing, the shrill clamor of roaring motors and wailing sirens splits traffic to answer the call.

No charge.

Just a helpful service, rendered to the best of our ability, as between good neighbors and good friends; but to its value, thousands of telephone users bear grateful witness.

Ask one who has been alarmed by prowlers of the night. Ask the man who has awakened to the smell of smoke. Ask the mother roused by the stricken cry of a child.

They'll tell you—more convincingly than we can—of single calls worth more than the service costs of a lifetime.

It's a lot better to have a telephone and "not need it," than to need a telephone and not have it.

Come in or call our Business Office today to ask about service.

BABY DYING OF MATCH BURNS

Ralph Hoffman, 3, of Duffy st., Dedham, was severely burned about the face, chest and arms while playing with matches at his home today. He was rushed to Dedham Hospital where he is not expected to live.

Mrs. Alice Hoffman, the mother, had left him alone while she went about her housework. Hearing the child scream, she hurried into the room to find his flimsy clothing in flames.

She smothered the fire with a blanket, and, running to the street, hailed a car driven by Harold C. Miller of Cantwell st. Patrolman Walter B. Greenough jumped on the running board, and cleared traffic ahead of the car, enabling the driver to make the hospital at a mile-a-minute clip.

MITCHELL TOLD NOT TO PAY TAX

New York, June 12 (AP)—Garrard B. Winston, former undersecretary of the treasury, told a jury in federal court today that in 1920 he had, as counsel to the directors of the National City Co., told officers of the company that $1,860,000 they had received from a management fund that year could not be regarded as personal income."

Included in the $1,660,000 was the sum of $666,666.67 paid to Charles E. Mitchell, then chairman of the company, and his failure to report it in his 1920 income tax return is the basis of one of the charges of income tax evasion for which he has been on trial for the last month.

Testifying for the defense, Winston, who practiced law in Chicago before becoming under-secretary of the Treasury in 1923, said he came from Washington to New York to resume his career as a lawyer in 1927. As a member of the board of the National City Co. and as its counsel, he wrote the resolutions that formed the management fund and governed its distributions.

Davis Pleads Not Guilty; Trial July 10

New York, June 12 (AP)—United States Senator James J. Davis of Pennsylvania pleaded "not guilty" to a new indictment in the Moose lottery case today. Trial date was set tentatively for July 10.

Rubber Official Dead

Akron, O., June 12 (AP)—Joseph D. Farrell, 56, manager of the dealer relations department of Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co., is dead at his home here.

Bouquets Slow Tour of Roosevelt Kin

Istanbul, June 12 (AP)—No flat tires slowed the automobile journey of a cousin of President Roosevelt through Turkey—but bouquets did.

Leila Roosevelt, motoring with a woman friend from Antwerp to Singapore, was far behind her schedule when she reached Istanbul.

Mayors of Turkish towns, seeing the name of Roosevelt on the passport, were unable to allow the occasion to pass without welcoming speeches and farewell bouquets.

Boyd's Agents Show No Concern for Flier

New York, June 12 (AP)—Representatives of Capt. J. Errol Boyd, who left here yesterday afternoon with two companions for a goodwill flight to Port au Prince, Haiti, in the veteran airplane Columbia, said today they were not concerned because the fliers have not been heard from as yet.

It was said that variable winds may have caused them to adopt a course which would make sighting of the plane improbable.

Two Arrested in Silverware Theft

Darien, Ct., June 12 (AP)—Two men, arrested at dawn as they trudged along Gardiner st. with bags of silverware slung over their shoulders, confessed later, police said, that they had looted the home of John Nickerson in Noroton of a silver set valued at $3900.

The men said they were Frank Dreger, 61, and Joseph Giarino, 20, both of New York.

MILLS BLASTS 'NEW DEAL'

Canton, N. Y., June 12 (AP)—Government leadership rather than control is the hope of America, said Ogden L. Mills, Secretary of the Treasury under former President Hoover, in an address at the commencement day exercises of St. Lawrence University today.

The address by the man generally regarded as the outstanding spokesman of the Hoover school of economic thought bristled with lines like these:

"The case for dictatorship has still to be proved. The case for self-government does not."

"I still favor life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness as contrasted with the five-year plan."

"The destruction of representative government is too high a price to pay for an efficiency that has yet to be demonstrated."

WARNER IN WAR ON RACKETEERS

Dyehouse managers, theatrical men and all others who have been approached by "protection racketeers" were invited today to a conference with Attorney-General Joseph E. Warner in a plan to clean up large losses that have been suffered by them.

Attorney-General Warner said he was especially interested in dyehouse owners who have been victimized by acid throwers when payments for protection have been refused.

Theater men have been subjected to bombers and firebugs under the same conditions, and he fears that other business men have had to pay weekly levies on their business would not be molested.

The state prosecutor said he already has gathered data and information for several months.

Medford Lifeguard Restored to His Job

Transfer of funds by the Medford Board of Aldermen in the Park Department today restored Lifeguard Frank Brewster to his post at Wright's Pond, where he has already been accredited with 600 rescues of bathers.

Wright recently lost his post when the legislature transferred the pond area from the water to the park department. A movement was under way to buy back Frank Brewster's calico pony, auctioned by the guard after he lost his job. The horse rescued two bathers last year.

Assassin's Plot Fails

Innsbruck, Austria, June 12 (AP)—An attempt to assassinate Richard Steidle, leader of the Tyrolese Heimwehr, was made here by unidentified men in an auto. He was wounded in the forearm.

"YOU BETTER let me fix you something, really," she said, standing aside to let him enter the house.

He walked straight into the living room without answering. He found his hat on a chair, and picked up his glistening handcuffs. Leni was behind him discreetly. At last he was brought to look at her.

"It's a shame," he said in an amazingly calm voice, "for your sake, I mean. Too bad you're in love with that bird."

She was able, without effort, to match his calmness.

"On the contrary, it's the nicest thing I can imagine," she replied.

"Nobody can put the jug on me like that and get away with it," Mulrooney told her, slowing the handcuffs away under his coat at the rear. "We'll get him within 24 hours and heaven help him then!"

There was no use arguing with the man now. Whatever she would ask him would be more out of curiosity than anything else.

"About myself—am I under arrest? For complicity?"

"No—not yet anyway," said Mulrooney. "I'm going to get Cavanaugh first."

"I don't believe I'd do that," remarked Leni quietly.

He ignored her words. "Where's your telephone?"

"Why?"

"Why? Inside of two minutes I'll have every radio police car in the city on the lookout for your handsome friend. We'll get him, don't worry."

"I'm not worrying," said Leni smoothly. "But I think you are. None of this would have happened if you had listened to me—do you realize that?"

SULLEN EYES

Mulrooney looked at her with sullen and heavy eyes.

"If I listen to any more of your advice I'll wind up pounding a beat," he said. "Whose idea was it to bring Cavanaugh out here anyway?"

Leni's shoulders in their cloth of gold jacket shrugged with a small foreign air.

"As you please, Mr. Mulrooney. I think you are making a mistake though. As long as Lucky is at liberty, you can depend upon it, he'll do his best to catch the man you're after."

"Oh, he will, will he?"

"He said he would—and that's quite good enough for me. I have an idea, too, that he'll succeed. Of course, if you put him in jail, that ends it. Are you going to let it be known generally that he escaped from your hands? I should think it would be rather a humiliating confession for an officer of your reputation to make—"

Leni found it astonishing to herself that she was able under these circumstances to hunter Mulrooney. Perhaps it was because she had relaxed and was no longer trying to accomplish anything in particular.

"Where is that telephone?"

Leni conducted him to it. There was a long talk made here by unidentified men in an auto. He was wounded in the forearm.

She yawned a little because, in truth, she was somewhat short of sleep. I'll go upstairs, she decided, and lie down. Mulrooney can leave whenever he pleases. I've been rowing the boat upstream all these years. Now I'm going to put down the oars and let it drift.

Mulrooney finished his call to headquarters. His words had been imperative. Every policeman and detective in the city was commanded to be on the lookout for Lucky Cavanaugh. His description was broadcast over the police radio to every patrolling car.

Under suspicion of murder, the call was to bring Lucky Cavanaugh in dead or alive.

Mulrooney settled tightly down on his head. Mulrooney left the house. From her bedroom window upstairs, Leni saw him leave. He looked a great deal like a maddened bull ready to charge the first object that crossed his path.

Leni, ordinarily, had no telephone in her bedroom, but occasionally she had. Leaning over the chair in contact with the drowsy operator at S. S. Pierce's. The movement of a door. Leni stopped breathing. Something, suddenly, was going to happen . . .

Leni closed her eyes for a minute.

Then she opened them and looked into the mirror that was so close to her face. Over her shoulder on the far side of the room a closet door was slowly opening. It opened wide and out of the shadowy recess beyond stepped the familiar figure of Lucky Cavanagh.

"The safest place I could find in a hurry," he said with a smile. She was conscious only of a trembling delight.

"It's all in a lifetime," Lucky said in the unruffled manner she loved. "Are you glad to see me?"

Leni rose without taking her eyes off him, and went into his arms.

"Am I glad to see you? My darling!" she took a deep breath. "Darling, darling, darling!"

SPAGHETTI FRANCAISE

½ pkg. spaghetti
1 pound lean hamburg steak
½ pound sharp strong cheese
1 medium sized can tomatoes
¼ cup water
1 sweet pepper
Cayenne pepper

Cook spaghetti in briskly boiling, salted water for 9 minutes. Drain and let cold water run over it. While spaghetti is cooking, cut the tomato and the pepper, cup of water together. Melt 2 tbsps. butter in frying pan, then put the hamburg in and sprinkle lightly with salt and pepper. Stir now and then so that each piece will be cooked but do not fry dry. Cut cheese in small pieces. Chop the pepper. (Pepper may be omitted if desired). Butter a baking dish and put up the items in thirds. Put in 1-3 of the spaghetti, then 1-3 of the cheese, dash of cayenne, 1-3 of the tomato, 1-3 of the hamburg, and pepper. Do this until the 3 layers are complete. Dot top with butter and bake in a moderate oven 325 degrees or until a little brown.

Note: By using the salt in the boiling of the spaghetti and in frying the hamburg it is usually enough for us, but a little may be added, if salt is liked a lot. This is a good hearty dish and real tasty.

RACING WILL FILL UP the next week-end and the race meeting at the Brookline Country Club next Thursday and Saturday and at Raceland, John Macomber's magnificent country estate in Framingham, on Monday will bring out the best bloods of the season, horses and horse-lovers . . .

It is a subject of congratulation that this sport is in such good hands. The Eastern Horse Club, who are wise enough to bring this event here this month in spite of the times and our falling off the gold standard . . . moreover, the horses can't read the newspapers and will probably "come on" as fast as ever even though the purses may be smaller . . .

MRS. G. S. WEST

The popularity of racing with the fair sex has always been demonstrated on race days at The Country Club . . . and with so many attractive sportsmen present this season (there has been so much demand for amateur riders in the races this year due to the largest number of entries ever received for Brookline and Raceland, that practically every amateur available will be there), they should be a tremendous attraction to the Fair Things . . .

Hundreds of out-of-town guests are due to arrive in town this week . . . Mr and Mrs. Allan Forbes of Weston will have as their house guests Capt. and Mrs. Dimitri Ivanenks of Aiken and Long Island and on Saturday, Mr. and Mrs. George S. West are giving a luncheon for some of their out-of-town friends who have horses running on these three days . . . they will have as house-guests Mr. Arthur Fowler, his daughter, Miss Jane, and his son, Anderson, who will ride his own horse, Peacock, which is entered in the Norfolk Hunt Club Steeplechase on June 15 . . .

The Wests will also entertain their niece, Ann Hostetter, of Far Hills, N. J., and Dr. A. C. Randolph, M. F. H. Piedmont Fox Hounds of Upperville, Va.

Luncheon Planned for Thursday

MRS. GEORGE PEABODY GARDNER is giving a luncheon on the 15th, Thursday, for a group of friends and of course Mr. and Mrs. Algie Goodwin will have a crowd down at Brookenside, their lovely estate at Hamilton.

Mr. and Mrs. Ambrose Clark will be guests of the Quincy Shaws over the racing days . . .

A feature of the events will be the riding of "Pete" Bostwick, nephew of Mrs. Clark, and popular gentleman jockey . . . When Bostwick is carrying the colors he is a hard one to beat . . . his mount usually goes out a strong first favorite as the public seems to have faith that he and his horse is a combination which will give a good account of themselves . . . a good judge of pace through the field, Mr. Bostwick rates his horse nicely and can put up a powerful finish, a particularly good one for an amateur . . .

Mr. Henry G. Vaughan, retiring master of the Norfolk Hunt and Mr. Richard Ely Danielson, master of the Groton Hunt Club, are giving a dinner to the stewards and amateur riders at the Tavern Club, Thursday evening, June 15.

John Macomber to Entertain

ONE OF THE HIGH SPOTS and the most anticipated will be John Macomber's luncheon in his garden at Raceland to the owners and out-of-town guests, visiting horsemen, and his host of friends on Monday, June 19 . . .

The number of those who have applied for badges and have its environs . . . many new names are listed among the boxholders as well as nearly all of the veterans to these Country Club races . . . the Tuckermans, the Pingrees, the Hamlins and Vaughans, the Almys, the Bancrofts and Birds, the Trimans and Danforths of Cohasset, the Gardiner Fiskes and the Allan Forbes, the Westa and Saltonstalls, all of the good old names appear on the box list and we already see more evidence of the "Hail, Hail, the gang's all here!" spirit than for many years past . . . misery loves company and everyone has felt the "misery" in one way or another this year . . . so let's take the week-end off and pour through the gateways with the crowd, place a shilling on Mosquito's Nose and pretend we're a big shot in the horse world . . . if we get "stung" we will have had our fun.

* * *

Going Abroad to Meet Daughter

WE WILL BE THERE wetting our pencil to add up our winnings and chalk down who's who in the social parade . . . the cameras will be clicking at you and you and you, rain or shine . . . so if you see someone who is not too slight of stature, with a pleasing personality and unspoiled, wearing peonies . . . that will be US! We'll be seeing YOU!

* * *

Why was "Jimmie" Roosevelt lunching ALONE at the Ritz the other day . . . did "Betsy" forget her date?

* * *

Mrs. "Bobby" Ogden seemed all of a dither about an affair she is giving at the Ritz soon . . . the maitre d'hotel kept her smiling, however, as they talked over the plans.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Woodward are going abroad to meet their daughter Peggy, who is coming out this fall at a tea in October . . . their son Vernon graduates from Harvard next week . . . Grandmother Kennard will no doubt entertain for her granddaughter at her lovely house on Chestnut st. . . .

* * *

The Charles Gaston Smiths have taken Mrs. "Contract" McMillan's house at Cohasset for the summer . . .

* * *

That popular bachelor, Paul Eates, is on his chaise lounge under the doctor's orders this time . . . scores of his friends drop in to keep the "little" sufferer cheered up . . .

BOOKS---And a Number of Things

By Charles Hanson Towne

The more one pores over the voluminous diaries of the late Arnold Bennett—the third and last has come from the Viking Press—the more one wonders at the mere physical activities of this amazing man of letters. He actually practiced all that he preached in his "How to Live on 24 Hours a Day." He never seems to have spent an idle moment. When he was not writing (his own reading; and what an amount of reading he accomplished!

His interest in life, as in literature, was insatiable. He walked often through the streets of London, and became fascinated with the bus riding. Nothing escaped him. When he came to the United States for a brief visit years ago, he knew all about us in no time.

Taken to Boston, I recall how his publisher, who accompanied him, told me that apparently Bennett observed nothing; yet when he sat down to write of that cultivated city, he had stored his active brain with impressions. He had got it. He had seen not only the surface, but the under-currents. He was more stepped in Boston, more conscious of it, than its oldest inhabitants. He called it the most European city in America, and he was right.

He damned our elevated roads in New York, while we, used to their hideousness, had long since forgotten them, had merely gone on accepting them as a necessary nuisance and convenience.

How did he find time for all his activities? How did he manage to keep a meticulous journal, to use one of his favorite adjectives, which must have consumed many hours of his busy days, and yet find time to produce his rich, leisurely novels? You will learn if you glance through the entries of his fascinating diaries. He met, literally, everyone of note or importance. He was besieged by press photographers and autograph friends, millionaires from the United States, too; he lunched and dined, seldom at home, but out in the noisy world; he went to concerts, to all the new plays; he traveled, he was a chairman, he was a constant and punctilious letter-writer, and yet, here is one entry which should shame us all. It should particularly shame and astonish any young writer who sits about waiting for that elusive thing called inspiration. It was written toward the very end of his career, on Monday, Dec. 31, 1928 (he died on March 27, 1931):

"This year I have written 304,000 words: one play, two films, one small book on religion, and about 80 or 81 articles. Also I lost a full month in rehearsals, and a full month, so, six weeks, on holidays."

The word "lost" reveals the man—the indefatigable worker, the constitution of iron, the lover of life who hated to miss a moment at his desk.

He was honest, if he was not always just. For instance, he went to hear Ruth Draper, and reveals his impressions thus:

"A packed and putrid matinee audience at the Garrick, nearly all women. Laughing in the wrong place—giggling, whispering. Tea drinking. Ruth is very clever. She is a wonderful imitater, but not much of a creator. Some things, however, such as the Englishwoman showing her garden, were splendidly cruel. Others feebie and formless. The observation seems to be exact but superficial. She is highly skilled, and looks nice."

Yet, in spite of his feelings about the art of this wonderful woman, he speaks of how he had in mind the writing of a play for her. Nothing ever came of it, though he talked with her several times on the subject.

He believed in going to bed early. He rose with the lark immediately got out his notebook, and began to scribble. There was evidently not a wasted moment in his life after fame had come to him.

His friendships were deep and lasting. He was ever ready to praise a book if he found anything of worth and beauty in it. No wonder the younger writers flocked to him for advice and encouragement. He loved what success had made possible for him, and he was not ashamed to say so.

SCIENTISTS PROVE this Soap is wonderful aid in keeping skin Young-looking

Scientists say, "Tests show Lux Toilet Soap actually contains precious elements Nature puts in skin itself to keep it youthful."

SOFT, smooth, youthful skin! Who wouldn't do everything in her power to keep the exquisite skin-texture of youth!

Hollywood does. 686 out of the 694 important Hollywood actresses use fragrant, white Lux Toilet Soap because they find it keeps skin so deliciously smooth . . . radiant . . . young-looking. But WHY does it do this?

The Secret of Youthful Skin

Nature, you know, puts certain precious elements into every type of skin. Youthful skin is rich in them. But these elements are gradually lost as the years go by. Then skin grows tragically dull, old-looking.

NOW scientists bring good news: You can check the loss of these precious elements! For laboratory tests show this soap actually contains precious elements skin itself has—and must have to stay youthful.

Lux Toilet Soap, completely free from harshness, readily soluble, and containing such precious elements, is an unquestionable aid in keeping skin young-looking, scientists declare.

Why don't you give your skin this scientific care just as millions of men and women are doing everywhere? Start today!

For EVERY Type of Skin ...oily...dry..."in-between"—

CONSTANCE CUMMINGS is one of scores of screen stars who have used Lux Toilet Soap for years to keep their complexions young-looking.

FOSTER PARENTS DESERVE ENDLESS GRATITUDE FOR SHARING THEIR HAPPINESS

Adopted Son's Desire to Change Name Scored as Lacking in Appreciation

By Mrs. Beeckman

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Can a person who has been adopted use his own name when he becomes of age?

We hope to be married some day and he would like to use his own name. He is 22 years of age.

Please won't you help us to do the right thing. We do not want to offend his foster-parents by any means. Don't you think his foster-parents ought to tell him how he stands?

They never mention anything about his past . . . didn't even tell him his own name. He knows it, however, but I do not know how he found it out.

He often tells me that he had two brothers, but that he didn't know their names, or where they lived. They were rather grown-up when he was taken away.

Please give us your opinion as to what to do. READER.

I don't know what the law is about this . . . your fiance would have to inquire very definitely about this, if he is contemplating this thoroughly ungrateful step . . . but it is very difficult for me to believe that he is serious about taking this step.

Sacred Things

There are few things in life more gloriously generous than the act of a couple who are willing to share their happiness and living with a child who would otherwise have no comfortable home, no devotion, no care. It's a sacred thing for them to do, and surely it should be blessed by appreciation and appreciation and more appreciation.

If you and your fiance are honest in saying that you "don't want to offend his foster-parents by any means," I wonder what you think this really would do to them . . . Make them sing for joy that, after all of these precious years during which they have cared for him, given him a home, nurtured him, he should think of discarding their name, the name that has protected him? Has he no realization of his spiritual responsibility to these kind people?

Thought It Right

It is not for you, my dear girl, to sit in judgment on what his foster-parents did or did not do concerning his upbringing. Without doubt they did what they thought was the right thing to do. People think differently about this question of adoption, but I never yet have seen a foster-parent who didn't honestly try to do what he or she thought the right and wise thing to do.

I think that you would be a wiser girl, and that you and your fiance would be happier and finer people, if you spend your time not in criticizing what these kind and generous people have thought wise to do, but in upstanding and forthright appreciation of all that they have given to this young man. "Sharper than a serpent's tooth, to have a thankless child, is just as true of a thankless foster-child.

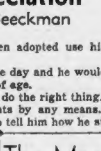
The Marry-Go-Round; Human Paradox

By HELEN ROWLAND

NATURE IS FOND of paradoxes; but her masterpieces of inconsistency is probably MAN.



Helen Rowland

He jubilantly passes foolish statutes, like the 18th Amendment, and promptly begins to devise ways and means to get around them. He puts a cast-iron embargo on his own thirst — and then tries to break it with a raisin and a little prune juice.

* * * *

He invents rich and spicy foods and employs expensive cooks to tempt his palate—and then pays expensive doctors to cure him of his dyspepsia.

* * *

He invents every possible labor-saving device to make his life easier—and then has to invent reducing-machines, golf, dumbbells and Indian clubs to take off his weight and give him some exercise.

* * * *

He cuts all the hair off his head just as fast as it grows. But, the moment it begins to depart of its own accord, he has a panic and rushes around buying tonics and trying "treatments" to coax it back in again.

* * *

He spends three-quarters of his life, working himself to death for money and power—and the remaining quarter living on gruel or a liquid diet, and wondering what he's going to do with his money.

* * *

Yes, Nature certainly turned out some highly finished work, when she made the male of the human species.

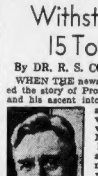
Your Body Can Withstand 15 Tons

By DR. R. S. COPELAND

WHEN THE newspapers printed the story of Professor Picard and his ascent into the "stratosphere," worldwide interest was aroused. But we should learn more about the normal atmosphere in which we live. Few realize what an important part it plays in our daily life.



Dr. Copeland

Normal atmospheric pressure is fifteen pounds to the square inch. Applied to the barometer, it is the pressure that will hold up a column of mercury thirty inches high. It is estimated that the body of an average sized man living at sea level, is subjected to a total pressure of about 34,000 pounds, or more than fifteen tons.

This pressure is essential to normal health. The tissues and juices of the body are subjected to this pressure and could not function without it. Breathing is influenced by the pressure. Even the heads of certain bones are kept in their sockets by the outside pressure.

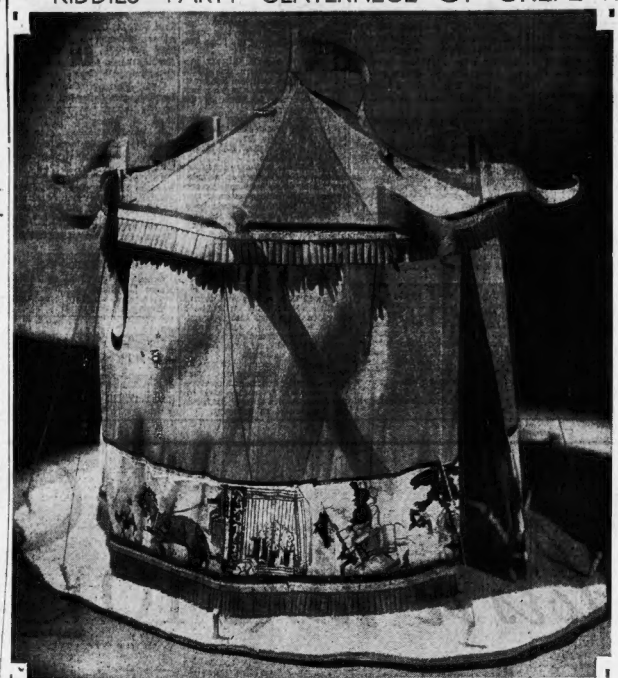
A change in pressure results in mechanical changes within the body. Persons visiting high altitudes as in mountain climbing or in aviation, complain of weakness, severe headache and nausea. The hands and feet become cold, the pulse is weak, and breathing is deeper, faster and difficult.

If exposure to unfamiliar atmospheric pressure is prolonged, impairment of sight, hearing and other unpleasant sensations result. These symptoms are caused by the high altitude which produce lowering of the atmospheric pressure.

When the atmospheric pressure is increased the body likewise suffers. It is seldom that man is subjected to increased pressure. To those who enter diving bells, diving suits, and caissons, it becomes a problem.

In severe cases the victim complains of marked pains in the legs and abdomen. He "doubles up" with pain. The men call the affliction the "bends" and although they joke about it, they dread the affliction.

KIDDIES' PARTY CENTERPIECE OF CREPE PAPER



Can you imagine anything to delight the cockles of a little-girl or a little-boy heart more than this tent especially pitched as a party table centerpiece? You can have all the fun of making it yourself of crepe paper and cardboard base. We can see the wide-eyed excited little faces at the news that, in addition to the glamorous tent itself, there are circus favors inside that can be pulled out by strings fastened at each plate, and all sorts of fierce animals Why not plan a circus party for the next little one's birthday party due by the calendar. For boy or girl going-on-3 or going-on 13, you can count on the circus party's being a success. The important thing is the tent, for which directions for making are given here.

DIRECTIONS: Foundation—An oval piece of heavy cardboard —22 inches long and 18 inches wide.

Wrap four heavy-weight wires, 12 inches long, with sand-color crepe paper. Bend ½ inch at top into a hook. Bend 1¼ inches at bottom at right angles. Tape the four wires, which are now 10 inches high, at equal distances to base so that they can support a wire ring 10 inches in diameter at top. Fasten it to the four upright wires with spool wire.

Cut two strips of sand crepe paper each 10 inches wide and approximately 15 inches long. Along one edge sew a circus border cut from crepe paper or use animal cut-outs pasted on plain crepe. Finish with a strip of one-inch crepe ruffling. Paste or sew these two "skirts" one directly opposite the other on the wire ring.

For the roof, cut a circle 12 inches in diameter. Divide evenly into eighths and cut out one eighth. Join the two cut edges for the slant or cone-shaped roof. The eighth cut away will serve as a pattern for the various colors. They may be sand, red, blue and yellow. Paste them with edges just touching the roof. A heavy-weight wire, 17 inches long, may be wrapped with sand crepe and a two-inch bend made at base to tape to the base of the centerpiece.

Finish the roof with a row of crepe ruffling like that used at the bottom. The pennants are long pointed strips of bright crepe, pasted to match sticks. Match sticks glued to the base represent pegs, and gold cord from the roof pennant to the pegs on base represent tent ropes. As a final touch, spread glue on base and sprinkle with sawdust.

HEARTY SALAD FOR THE BRIDGE PARTY

By Martha Lee

From Matha Lee's Monday Morning Broadcast Over Station WAAB

ONE OF THE BIGGEST problems in menu-making for the Lee family is to get the gentlemen of the house to consume their daily quota of fresh vegetables and green salads without grumbling. It's always easy to satisfy feminine appetites with a dainty Tomato en Surprise, or a delicate fruit combination, but it has to be a pretty hearty salad, usually of the meat or fish variety, to smother masculine protests.

Chicken, tuna fish, lobster, crab flakes and ham, combined with suitable condiments are hearty enough to have a he-man appeal, especially if served with hot breads and coffee, and they certainly do make it possible to use up left-overs economically.

Party Salad

For your next bridge party salad, for "mixed company," try adding to your ordinary chicken mixture (3 cups cubed), 2 hard-cooked eggs diced and 1½ cups of celery. The eggs make the chicken go further and add to the salad's staying quality, and the combination is very attractive mounded on a bed of crisp lettuce covered with mayonnaise and garnished with a few perfect slices of hard-boiled eggs and stuffed olives.

Lobster salad is always a masculine favorite and goes further when combined with ¼ the amount of chopped celery. It, of course, is seasoned with salt and paprika, and let marinate in French dressing for an hour. Then drain and arrange on crisp lettuce, spread with mayonnaise and decorated with slices of hard-cooked eggs and little fans made of pickle slices.

Two Rules

When you are planning your summer salads there are two good rules to remember. In addition to the fundamentals of crips lettuce and chilled ingredients attractively prepared. Salads of fruits and vegetables should be served with meals composed mostly of starchy foods. When salads are made of meat, eggs, nuts, cheese or starchy vegetables they are intended to be served as a one-piece meal and are balanced by bread and butter, a beverage and possibly a simple sweet.

P. S. The new Martha Lee Cooking Classes will open Wednesday, July 13, from 10 a. m. to 12 noon. They will run for eight weeks, ending Wednesday, August 31. There is no charge whatsoever for these lessons in summer cookery, but it is necessary to enroll in order to receive a ticket of admission.

Styles Useful to Suburban Residents

WOMEN WHO live in the suburbs have learned that a day in the city makes many demands of a costume. Dressing for the role calls for an outfit versatile enough to answer the crying needs of assorted duties throughout one day.

The two models shown in the accompanying drawing were sketched in one of New York's smartest eating places at noon. Each was dark enough to withstand the dust and dirt of the city, yet capable of carrying one into the evening with no misgivings. The dark crepe dress on the left, in simulated two-piece effect, with short tunic, was in reality a one-piece dress. Interesting things about it were the soft, gathered neckline and sleeves, and the white scarf touches cleverly worked into an intricately-arranged belt.

Cotton tweed is cool and smart. It is easy on the purse and then easy to take care of, since the hardest thing in the world to do is to wrinkle it. Which makes the suit on the right just about right! The diagonal navy stripes are slenderizing—that, too, is a happy thought! When the knee-length jacket is later removed, it discloses a well cut, moulded dress with tiny crepe sleeves. The bag of monkey skin grain, one of many new leather arrivals, is roomy enough for the day's supply of cosmetics, checkbook, shopping notes and endless programs to bring home again.

THE DAILY TRUE STORY

The Prodigal Son

THE PARTY in the cosy Village apartment of George Winterbottom was in full force. A motley crowd was assembled—invited and uninvited. Among them were girls with short hair who were writing poetry and artists with long hair who were painting weird pictures.

George had moved into this apartment about a half-year previously and during that time it had become the mecca for all sorts of artists, radicals and anyone who bore a grouch against the world or civilization.

As the party staggered toward the dawn, George, mellowed by quite a number of drinks, began to think back to the days before he had become part of this wild-eyed and wild-tongued assemblage.

He recollected vividly the last scene at his parent's home when he had a showdown with them as to the all-embracing subject of truth and justice and the rights of the common people and parasites. He still remembered how his mother had been deeply shocked when he told her she was leading a worthless and unworthy butterfly existence and how his father had smiled when he denounced the banking business as one of the major curses of civilization.

The party was breaking up and George was bestirring himself. A pair of clammy arms had seized him and he was being kissed a fond good-bye. One of the poetesses who was making a final impression on him. He shook hands with a number of others.

He wondered, as they were leaving, whether they had really become intimate, devoted friends of his—or whether it was just in service because of his bounteousness in food and drink.

Left alone, his mind went off to another tangent. He had left his father's roof with full intentions of accomplishing something big and stirring and epochal. He had wanted to develop his personality—to achieve something, to create something. It had been difficult for him to explain these moods to his parents, but he left them, nevertheless. Summing up now, he realized he had been merely deceiving himself.

And suddenly he began to think of Doris—Doris Spanson—the sweetheart he had rejected for his new ideals . . . and he made a new resolution.

George decided that the reason he had so far failed to "find himself" was because he had taken along with him into his new environment the ideas of his old one—that of drinking and dining and dancing. He decided to eliminate them.

Quietly he caused rumor to be circulated about that his source of income had been cut off and that he had become as poor as the rest of them. However, he still kept open house, and that everyone was still welcome. When they came he treated them to long gobs of conversation, but with nothing to soothe the palate.

It was not long before George began to note the difference. The visits of his "intimate" friends began to fall off and grew less frequent. And their heartiness began to decrease together with their diminishing flattery.

He began to experience an occasional lonesome evening. His invitations persisted as previously, but the acceptances were growing fewer. Some even began to break promises and appointments.

On one such lonesome evening, he began to ramble through an old address book. Suddenly he thought of Doris' phone number. Before he had time to change his mind, he had already dialled.

"Listen, Doris," he remarked, "I'm kind of lonesome—will you come down and visit my lair."

There was no reproach from the other end of the line. Just a quizzical tone: "George, what made you call me up so suddenly?"

"Oh, justa whim—or maybe something more. Will you come down?"

"Sure!"

Within half an hour she had breezed in. He noticed how much more vitally alive she appeared than the erotic poetesses and even languorous artist's models.

"Tell me all about yourself—you terrible 'red'—how have you spent your past six months—thrown any bombs," she laughed.

George couldn't resist the impulse to laugh back. Her tone was coy and bantering.

"Doris," he asked her, "tell me—do you still love me?"

"Even if you grew whiskers," she replied.

"Well," drawled George, "I guess I won't have to. In the past few months I have reached the conclusion—that unfortunately, I'm afraid, I'm not good for anything else—than that of being a banker."

Doris gaily put her arms around him and kissed him. And her kiss was not clammy.

Don't Expect Joy, Advice to Grads

Urbana, Ill.—Approximately 12,000 seniors heard Rabbi Solomon B. Freehof of Chicago say this in a baccalaureate address:

"The surest way to be miserable is to expect always to be happy. To count on unbroken joy is the most tragic miscalculation of which the human mind is capable. The rainbow chasers will get plenty of exercise, but will stumble ultimately into the swamp of despair."

Quincy Has Eye on Congress

While the eyes of the rest of the country are turned on Washington waiting for Congress to adjourn, residents of Quincy are hoping that it will do so for very personal reasons. If it fails to get finished in time, they will miss their chance to see President Roosevelt in person.

Present plans for the presidential vacation call for a short stop in Quincy on his way from Groton to Marion next Friday. He will attend the graduation of his son in Groton and then leave for Marion, where he will start a cruise on the yacht Amberjack II.

At Quincy, the President will stop at the Adams House, home of two former presidents of the United States, at the corner of Independence ave. and Franklin sts., South Quincy. He will arrive there at 3:30 p. m.

Mayor Charles A. Ross will present a granite vase, made from one of the sleepers of the old Granite railway, the first railroad line in America, to the President.

Two Fined in Drive Upon Hitchhikers

While the drive against hitchhikers in the Blue Hills reservation by Metropolitan police continued today, two men were fined $5 in Quincy district court, bringing the total for the last two days to six. Harry Lipoff and Harold Beverly, both of Goodale st., Roxbury, were today's victims. Both were arrested yesterday on the Blue Hill parkway in Milton.

$21,000 GIVEN TO AID JEWISH

A total of $21,000 has already been subscribed here in the united campaign for $100,000, Boston's allotment of the national drive for $2,000,00 for the immediate relief of German Jews and to aid them to settle in Palestine.

The Boston drive was launched last night at a dinner at Hotel Bradford at which representative Jewish men and women were aroused to a high pitch of enthusiasm. The total of $21,000 was subscribed within a half-hour.

Jacob L. Wiseman, secretary of the Boston campaign, who presided at the dinner, announced that 500 volunteers had been enlisted to carry on the solicitation work. He said the drive would be continued for several weeks.

Leading the list of prominent speakers at the dinner was Rabbi Jonah B. Wise, of New York, chairman of the national campaign of the Jewish joint distribution committee. He declared that Jewish leaders in Germany were convinced that Jews are finished in Germany.

Other speakers included Louis E. Kirstein, president of the Associated Jewish Philanthropies, of Boston; Rabbi Harry Levi, of Temple Israel, and Judge William M. Lewis, of Philadelphia, representing the Jewish Agency for Palestine.

SHOT CLUB MAN FACES GRILL

Convinced that Frank Calcagni of Cambridge, manager of The Oaks on the Newburyport turnpike in Saugus, knows who waylaid and shot him early Saturday morning, Police Chief Stuart of Saugus went to St. Elizabeth's Hospital today to seek an opportunity to grill the wounded man.

"He can clear up this mystery," said Chief Stuart.

The chief said that the four men and one woman who were taken into custody late Saturday for questioning and who were released early Sunday, supplied no helpful information.

He is anxious to find a Melrose man, said to have been a frequent visitor at the inn, and to learn who it was that Patrolman Joseph Lambert saw talking with Calcagni in front of The Oaks at 11:45 Friday night.

Mystery concerning the auto in which Calcagni was riding when ambushed was partly cleared up.

Chief Stuart said that Mrs. Calcagni's maiden name was Dorothy Robinson. The car was registered under that name and the address was 191 Lincoln st., Franklin, which is the part-time home of Oliver B. Garrett, former Boston police liquor raider. Garrett was for a time an employe of Calcagni. Mrs. Calcagni lives with her husband in Vale ct., Cambridge.

College Honors Mrs. 'Al' Smith

Chicopee, June 12 (INS)—Mrs. Alfred E. Smith, wife of former Gov. "Al" Smith of New York, came here today to be honored as the country's outstanding Catholic laywoman, at commencement exercises of Our Lady of the Elms College.

Bishop Thomas F. O'Leary presents the Vin Veritas medal to Mrs. Smith, as the Catholic laywoman whose work during the year best exemplifies the teachings of the Catholic church.

The wife of the "Happy Warrior" of the 1928 presidential campaign, came here with Mrs. Daniel J. Mooney, a close friend. She refused to discuss politics.

Asked if she had any suggestions as to what the women of the country might do to help improve conditions, Mrs. Smith answered:

"No, I think the women have done well to stand by in this trying period, and the only thing they can do is to continue."

Sailors Lose Garb in Locker Holdup

Several U. S. sailors who donned civilian clothes while on week-end leave, can't get back into their uniforms again today. And it's not because they got sunburned on the swan boats, either. It is because they have no uniforms.

Novokoff's locker building on Wapping st., Charlestown, used principally by sailors and marines, was robbed by three men early today, who held up Peter Michaels, the watchman, at gunpoint.

SPANIARDS SET RECORD IN HOP

Havana, Cuba, June 12 (AP)—Two veteran Spanish army fliers whose 4500-mile non-stop flight from Seville to Cuba set a new North Atlantic record were hailed by enthusiastic Cubans today.

Capt. Mariano Barberan and Lieut. Joaquin Collar left the Spanish city Saturday morning and arrived at Camaguey, in Central Cuba, Sunday afternoon, averaging about 115 miles an hour in the 39 hours and 50 minutes they were in the air.

This afternoon they planned to leave for Havana where an ovation greater than the first was prepared. Later they will fly to Mexico City. Unfavorable weather conditions prevented them from continuing to the Cuban capital last night.

THIS IS LIFE

What'll the Forest Army Read? Book by Pound or by Title

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

AT THE END of a long paragraph in one of last week's papers concerning the Congressional squabble about how much the toilet kits for the reforestation corps cost and whether Louis Howe had anything to do with steering the contract, I found a little paragraph which interested me much more than anything about toilet kits.

R. E. Rogers

"While the arrangements were being made for pursuing the price study, the Conservation Corps disclosed that 81,000 books were being bought by the army quartermaster's department for distribution to the forest camps and that eventually 225,000 books would be bought. The price and the companies bought from were not announced."

That last line is characteristic. Congress will be greatly interested in the price and the companies. Apparently there is no inquiry as to what sort of books will be bought. Like Mr. F. P. A. of New York, in matters of this sort, I crave to know the whole story. The price doesn't matter. You can get any number of good books nowadays for 90 cents or a dollar. Classics, standard books, and recent big successes—all are available in reprints which are cheap but not nasty. Good books were never so cheap.

To Read by Pound or Title?

But what books? What sort of books? Who is selecting them? What qualifications has the quartermoster's department for selecting reading matter for thousands of young men? Will they be bought according to specifications? So many thousand, cloth bound, eight by six inches, weight 1½ pounds, bound in olive drab cloth, at 63 cents apiece? So many more, 12 by 10 inches, weight 2¼ pounds, bound in boards, at 85 cents apiece? One book of each size and weight to be issued to each man, not to be exchanged or damaged. Property of the U. S. Government.

Will bids be asked from publishers in competition? That will be a swell chance for some lucky house to get rid of its remainders without the bother of jobbing them. Or will the big jobbers be given a chance to clear their warehouses of the accumulated literature of the past 20 years? Or will the American Library Association have a look-in on the deal and furnish suitable lists for youthful adults?

At least the government is not relying on private generosity to provide the books. I believe that the training camp libraries during the war were supplied in part by some such means. And one can imagine what many of the books must have been like. A book-collecting drive for hospitals or charity always unearths the most extraordinary array of discarded and forgotten reading matter. Garrets are ransacked and the result dumped on the hapless and grateful beneficiaries.

Some years ago one of my Technology undergraduates was actively employed in collecting and distributing books for the American Merchant Marine Library Association. Every year books are appealed for from private individuals, are collected, laboriously tabulated and distributed. One day the boy called me up and asked me if I wanted to take off his hands some books that nobody wanted, that no one could imagine the American Merchant Marine giving ship-room to.

Some Musty Reading Matter

Being a fool for books, for printed matter of any kind, I told him to send them along. Presently they arrived. Many of them I was glad to get. I suspect that he sent me only books which he thought might interest me. He spared me the hopeless junk. But what I did receive was a dreadful indication of how little thought people put on the question of what might reasonably be supposed to interest young men at sea or in a logging camp.

There were the bound volumes of the first 10 years of the Atlantic Monthly, which are of course, valuable. Then there were a mixed lot of bound volumes of Harper's, the Century, Scribner's, Leslie's, Munsey's et al, dating from 1855 to 1893. There was even a volume of the English "Cornhill" of 1869, containing a serial by Charles Reade, "Put Yourself in His Place." Nice, lively, up-to-date reading for a boy on shipboard.

There were a good many books on literary subjects. Hutton's "Curiosities of the American Stage," a fine book and valuable. Memoirs of the literary life of Boston after the Civil War by Mrs. Fields and Mrs. Aldrich. Literary gossip by Hamilton Wright Mabie, the Billy Phelps of his day. Odd volumes of Mark Twain and Mr. Dooley. Destined to furnish the materials for animated critical debate to the forecastle, after the plum duff and grog had been served, the pipes lighted, as they waited for the look-out to cry "Thar she Blows—and a sparm at that!"

Or whatever it is they do on the American Merchant Marine.

No, I am inclined to believe that even the Quartermaster's Department may be better trusted to supply the books than the good people of literary tastes and overcrowded shelves.

I should suggest to the authorities that a hard day's work at practical forestry will not be conducive to too much heavy reading. When Nathaniel Hawthorne joined the Brook Farm colony he expected to spend half the day tilling the soil, to earn his keep, and the other in plain living, high thinking, solid reading and philosophic discussion.

Toil and Knowledge Don't Mix

He soon discovered that manual labor and intellectual effort did not mix. After a day of heavy toil he confessed himself beaten. He wrote down in his journal some very bitter and cogent sayings about the absurdity of utopian ideals. He implied that manual labor was one job and reading and thinking quite another, and that both should be left to specialists.

Yet there will be a minority of men in whom physical weariness cannot quench the thirst for knowledge, the desire to use the mind. Plenty of mystery stories and westerns, yes. But also something a little more solid. The public libraries tell us that the urge for serious reading has grown with the depression.

Technical books, authoritative but written so a human being can understand them—if any are to be had. Biographies, perhaps the greatest incentive to ambition and achievement that exists. Books that "humanize knowledge," in James Harvey Robinson's winged phrase.

But, above all, let them be modern, even recent if possible! Modern youth has lost all sense of contact with the past. It is doubtful whether it is worth trying to revive that interest, to re-establish that contact. They live in the present. They want to know about that present, with whatever glimpses of the future are available.

And, of course, there will have to be the books that the Brain Trust is beginning to publish. At least give the boys a chance to guess what it is all about!

"Pep" Talk for Shifted Officers -:- Bag and Baggage to New Quarters

"SUPER" SAYS "HAIL AND FAREWELL"

Don't be disappointed by transfers to other divisions, Supt. Crowley told the lineup of shifted patrolmen in the Back Bay station as the order sending 223 of them to different stations was read. He recalled his chagrin at being moved when he was on a beat, but inside of eight years he was head of the force, he told them. To the men coming into the Back Bay division from other stations he addressed a "pep talk" full of fire and action.

OFFICER FRANK DUNN — OFFICER GEORGE E. GRAY

FROM ROXBURY TO HOMES OF ELITE

Patrolman Frank Dunn and George E. Gray were all smiles when they shifted their police belongings today from lockers in the Dudley st. station to Station 16 in the Back Bay. There the paid details are supposed to be better than in any other part of the city and the men shifted there from other berths saw good times coming again for them.

MISS SEARS THIRSTY AFTER 47-MILE JAUNT

MORSE DIVORCE DIVIDES TWO GIRLS' LOVE

One daughter sat with the mother and the other daughter with her father today when hearing on the contested divorce suit of Walter Morse of Franklin was resumed in Dedham court.

Morse charges Mrs. Alice Morse, also of Franklin, with cruel and abusive treatment and infidelity, and names Edward A. Merryfield and Atty. Edward M. Bennett, both of Boston.

Beulah Morse, 19, and Charlotte Morse, 17, the sisters, chatted together before court opened, and then Beulah went to sit with her father, while Charlotte sat with the mother.

Under cross-examination by Atty. Bennett, appearing in his own interest, Miss Emily Clearwater, public stenographer who has done much work for Bennett, testified that on one occasion Bennett had told her that Mrs. Morse and her sister had tried to extort money from him and had threatened his mother.

Miss Clearwater testified she heard Mrs. Morse demand money from Bennett and that on one occasion Mrs. Morse telephoned Bennett at his office and threatened his life if he did not go to see her.

Three hours later Bennett returned to the office, the witness said, began to weep, and said:

"I don't know why I went. I went, perhaps, to save your life and mine."

Mrs. Morse took the stand and under Bennett's questioning she admitted having had a conference in Franklin at which her husband demanded that she sign an affidavit admitting wrongdoing between her and Bennett.

She denied that she had seen Bennett twice a week for four years and denied ever making statements to Bennett that he was here and she wanted Miss Clearwater to leave him alone.

St. William's Drama to Be Presented Wed.

"The Prince of Realms," an allegorical drama, will be presented by the dramatic society of St. William's Parish, Dorchester, at the St. William's school hall, Savin Hill ave, Wednesday evening.

The play is a drama of the four seasons. Miss Virginia Sheehan is in charge of the production.

Court Weeps as Justice Is Served

In a welter of tears, the ends of justice were matched up today in Dedham district court, after a policeman witness had dropped a tear gas bomb from his pocket.

The lachrymose period started just after court had opened, but with Spartan fortitude the judge and 50 spectators, witnesses, defendants, attorneys, police officers and court officials returned to the courtroom within a few minutes after they had been chased out by the fumes.

Thenceforth through the morning, Clerk Francis J. Squires read off the complaints with tears in his eyes, attorneys and defendants pleaded for mercy with handkerchiefs held to their eyes, Senator Samuel H. Wragg, the court officer, and Probation Officer Walter Bagley, collected fines with wet and glistening cheeks, and Associate Justice John C. Lynch of Milford was weeping badly.

Alleged Store Thief Captured After Year

A year's suspicion on the part of police that Maria Smith of the South End, was a shoplifter, ended today when she was sentenced to three months for larceny from a downtown store.

Police told Judge Good in municipal court she was always accompanied by a man carrying a bag. Last Saturday she was without her escort and police said they found $10 worth of underclothing in her possession. She appealed.

Home Brew Seized in Beer Garden Raid

Failure to realize that the law now lets him sell beer, provided its 3.2 brought Stanislaw Besuvais, 40, of Saem into Lynn Court today, after a raid on an alleged beer garden in Brownville ave., Lynn, last night.

Police allege they found home brew for sale on the premises, and that it was over the legal limit. The premises are owned by Mr. and Mrs. Edward Dow, who, police say, are on the Lynn welfare list.

BOSTON FAVORS BORROWING TO AID CITIES

General approval was given by Boston today to the bill authorizing the state to borrow $30,000,000 to aid cities and towns and imposing a tax of 6 per cent on dividends of Massachusetts corporations.

Abraham E. Casson, legislative agent of Boston, expressed the city's approval at a hearing before the Senate ways and means committee.

Casson apposed one section of the measure under which the state finance board would control any expenditure of a borrowing city for which an appropriation was not made. He claimed that the board might exercise, for instance, power over salaries of city employes and attempt to force cities owing the state money to prolong present wage cuts beyond the period at present agreed to.

Rep. John Halliwell of New Bedford, sponsor of the bill, contended that Casson was unduly alarmed. The money from the tax on intangibles together with the $12,000,000 expected to accrue to the state from the Lafollette-ostigan bill, he said would more than offset the amounts that the municipalities would borrow which would leave city finances under local control.

Rep. Loring Young, representing the Associated Industries told the committee that he was glad to see that the bill does not make outright gifts to the cities and towns, that they would be required to repay amounts they borrow.

Rep. Pratt of Saugus made a amended to iron out any injustices. The fairness of a 6 per cent tax on intangibles, he told the court, has been admitted, by many outstanding tax authorities.

River Pirates Steal 5 Boats Near Quincy

A gang of river pirates invaded the waters of Germantown, Wollaston and Quincy, during the week end and made a getaway with five boats, it was revealed today.

The boats stolen in Germantown included a rowboat and two 11-foot skiffs owned by Thomas M. Olsen of 78 Shedds st., Earl Colburn of 14 Howe st., and Richard Ward of 42 Hodgkins st. In Wollaston a boat owned by the Merrymount Canoe Club was taken. A 25-foot power boat owned by John A. Sullivan of 1 Hillside ter., Belmont, was taken at the Victory Plant, Quincy.

CUPID LOSES TO CRUELTY

2 PACEMAKERS WORN DOWN BY STRIDE

She said it wasn't for a record and she certainly doesn't need to reduce, so it must have been for exercise that Miss Eleonora R. "Eleo" Sears, Boston's famous society sportswoman, hiked the 47 miles from Pdovidence courthouse to her Beacon st. home today in 10 hours and 20 minutes.

It is not recorded whether any little brown birds were singing, but all through the night Eleo slapped her stout hiking boots along the macadam of Route 1, alternately paced by Forrester "Big Tim" Clark, polo star, and Howard Lapsley of New York.

That is, they were supposed to pace her, but she set the pace at all times and the gentlemen did the puffing, while she averaged more than four and a half miles an hour.

Eleo's record for the distance was 9 hours 53 minutes, made in cool November weather in 1927, and not starting on a Sunday night when traffic was heavy. So it may be seen that, while admitedly not as young as she used to be, the squash and tennis star of yesterday is a long way from relegation to the dusty files.

What she eats and drinks during her long hikes, and why she makes them, have always been Eleo's secrets. A station wagon, chauffeur-driven and containing a maid, trailed her today and gave lifts to her perspiring male escorts.

The hike was directly over Route 1 to West Roxbury, Baker st. to Grove, past the Country Club, Lake st., Commonwealth ave., to Brookline ave. At Brookline ave. and the Riverway, Eleo encountered the first of the press reception committee which, lying late abed, always meets her just before the finish of a hike. Dog-trotting along side her:

Q.—How do you feel? A.—Great. Q.—How many times have you made this hike? A.—Oh, I don't know, this is the fourth or fifth, I guess.

Approaching the old homestead at 122 Beacon, she put on a finish spurt that out-distanced Clark, waved the chauffuer ahead to get the time, and, with mannish stride, vanished inside the house.

Later, to reporters, she said:

"I'm very thirsty, too thirsty to talk. I'm feeling fine. It was awfully hot, terribly hot. We had an awful crowd last night because it was Sunday. I wasn't trying for my record. I'm going to rest."

Recovery Is Strong; Some Are Cautious

—By B. C. Forbes—

New York, June 12—Notable recovery continues in employment, in commodities, in securities:

The more conservative declare that speculative operations have become a potent influnce.

B. C. Forbes

These same conservatives originally argued that the upward movement was started wholly by expectations of inflation, particularly outright currency inflation. No currency inflation having been set in motion—indeed, we still have a species of deflation in the form of a vast number of closed banks whose assets are frozen—the conservatives necessarily have had to evolve another contention to belittle the genuineness of the improvement in business volume and prices.

The writer cannot avoid the conclusion, based on actual facts and figures and on appearances that there has been some speculative ordering of raw materials by manufacturers, that there has been considerable bullish speculation on commodity exchange, that some part of recent buying of stock has been for purely speculative, quick-sale purposes. Raw rubber is a sample.

Nevertheless, it cannot be disputed that America has enjoyed and is enjoying very real recovery, based on consumptive buying.

Nor can it be disputed that the mental attitude of most people has undergone transformation: whereas despair ruled during the early part of this year, hopefulness has since developed.

Consider some of last week's events:

Commodities reaching new 1933 tops included several cereals, hides, wool, silk, sugar, lead, tin.

Bank clearings last month increased 20 per cent above April.

Electric power output is up 5.8 per cent above the 1932 corresponding period.

Commercial failures are the fewest in four years.

Almost every line of business is enjoying either modest or better-than-modest increase in sales. Retail trade has become distinctly brisker in many places, embracing both industrial centers and agricultural sections.

Provided sufficiently extensive governmental construction and other money-distributing projects are launched promptly the prevailing view is that the recovery here can be maintained.

WARNER'S WORK NOTICED

The initiative of Atty.-Gen. Joseph E. Warner against crime and rackets has served to bring this official before the citizens of the state. On a law and order platform, Warner, it is conceded, would be a dangerous opponent if he decided to go after the G. O. P. nomination for governor.

TODAY'S NEWS OF WALL ST. LEADERS

NUMEROUS new highs for the year were set on moderate advances by leading "Big Board" shares today. Bullish enthusiasm was reported as specially directed for the moment toward utilities, with Consolidated Gas a popular favorite.

"Sleepers" Have Yet to Discount Change

While admitting business is improving right along, the argument heard on all sides is as to what extent the stock market has already discounted business improvement. Certainly some stocks appear to have discounted a lot of future possibilities, and on the other hand there are probably some of what the Street calls "sleepers" which have yet to discount market-wise their companies' improved business outlook.

Pipe & Foundry Draws Attention

Recent strength in United States Pipe & Foundry has attracted attention, while there has been talk of a small pool operating in the stock, this sponsorship has not been discovered. On the other hand the company's business has been particularly flat. Inability of municipalities to buy cast iron pipe and lack of utility buying has kept business of this company below a year ago, and current dividends on common and preferred are being paid out of surplus.

Higher Quotations Expected for Oils

—SPECTATOR— Says:

The stock market enters a critical week today. Many more traders have been converted to the side of a setback. On the other hand, the bulls are still promising big doings once Congress goes home. This is a very good time to watch your step and not be stampeded into doing things.

One thing is sure. They'll have to take the rails up to put the rest of the market anywhere.

These carriers have been sour for a week. Of course, the news has been bad . . . maybe the new traffic gain and the May earnings reports, which should be very good, will turn the trick.

NEW STIMULUS FOR MARKETS IS AT HAND

By FRANK H. MELOON

Street observers see a new stimulus for the stock and commodity markets at hand in the start of the International Economic Conferences. J. P. Maher, former financial editor of the New York American, now partner in a big New York Stock Exchange house, tells us:

"There is a general feeling that the London Conference is going to be a futile affair on the theory that all countries are entering the negotiations with the idea of making the other fellow compromise. This idea is fostered by the preparations for a world-wide currency war by leading nations. However, these preparations of themselves should be an influence to getting together for no nation will benefit from being forced to a strictly nationalist program from which only temporary recovery or a gambling boom could result:

The past week has been one of very cheerful influences, with power output, carloadings and other barometers pointing to the well sustained character of the recovery. New England appears still in the leadership. Treasurer Paul Thurlow of the Cape Cod Steamship Co. aboard the Dorothy Bradford, tells me business booked between here and Provincetown is already at the highest point in 33 years. New England vacation resorts generally describe bookings as most promising.

First National Stores, Inc., officials tell me:

"The Massachusetts Food Index Number (a weighted average) for May, 1933, is not yet available but it is estimated that tonnage sales have increased approximately 3 per cent for First National Stores, Inc. for the four weeks ending May 27, 1933, as compared with a year ago.

"During the month of May, 1933, 90 retail grocery prices in our line were increased and 26 were decreased."

MILL ACTIVITY AT HIGH MARK

New York, June 12 (AP)—Domestic cotton mill activity is now at the highest level in several years and compares favorably with the all-time record high established in the winter of 1926-27, the New York Cotton Exchange service reported today.

"With very large orders for goods on hand and with stocks of goods at the mills very low, it is expected that mill activity will continue very high through the summer, even allowing for some contraction of activity through organization of the industry under the industrial recovery bill," said the statement.

"It appears probable that world consumption of American cotton this season will be around 13,800,000 to 14,000,000 bales, compared with 12,506,000 last season, 11,113,000 two seasons ago, 13,021,000 three seasons ago and 15,226,000 four seasons ago."

Dividends

Singer Manufacturing Co. declared a quarterly dividend of $1.50, payable June 30 to stock of record June 10. Three months ago the dividend was reduced to $1.50 from $2.

* * *

Old Colony Trust Associates declared regular quarterly dividend of 15 cents, payable July 1 to stock of record June 15.

—STATE ST.— Hears:

That the stock market starts the week still under the handicap of contradictory action by the rails and industrials. This sort of thing does not go on forever and one may confidently predict that the list will be moving in one direction, as a whole, before the week is out. Our guess would be on the upside. Outside of technical pointers, there is the chance that Congress will yield to the President and adjourn by mid-week. This in itself would call for a buying demonstration.

Technical Pointers

To some observers it seems that the most important of technical pointers is uncovered by a study of volume. In general it continues to show a willingness to increase on the upside. The list as a unit, and individual issues, become decidedly quiet when reactionary tendencies creep in.

The rails, which are the real sore spot, have not been traded in volume during the past few sessions, when they showed distinct leanings toward reaction. In individual issues, such as Atchison and Union Pacific, there has been a remarkable absence of activity. This is not the usual prelude to a break.

Market Policy

The best market policy would appear to be centered about the holdings previously noted here. The aircrafts, industrials, utilities and oils. These have a lot of room for speculative exploitation, and could be brought out to sustain the list during periods of uncertainty.

The hour-to-hour trading policy is chiefly concerned with the attitude of the industrials. It is important to keep close watch in order that a sudden surrender to the rails is not overlooked. The danger spot is now located just under 92.25 on the hourly industrial compilation. H. E. B.

MOST OF 'GOOD NEWS' IS OUT, SAYS HANEY

By LEWIS HANEY
Professor of Economics, New York University.

New York, June 12—Business news continues favorable and serves to bolster the market. A basis is provided for "whirls" in one group or another, and for enough public confidence to make support for the market fairly easy.

Nevertheless, I sense a growing feeling that most of the "good news" is out, and that the various stimulating influences which have produced this big rise in stock prices have been pretty well discounted.

There has been good selling for a long while, but now there seems to be less good buying than previously, the market acts distinctly tired. Certainly it acts differently, and since the trend has been upward, this arouses a suspicion that a down-turn is in the making.

At least one should give careful attention to the following symptoms.

1—The bond market has been decidedly reactionary for three days, for the first time since April.

2—The rail stocks have become distinctly backward, and are now refusing to confirm a further rise.

3—Brokers' loans have expanded more rapidly than the stock market has risen.

4—The volume of trading has subsided since the big runup in the last few days of May, although the market has been trying to go up.

5—There has been less of a tendency for volume to expand on rallies, and more tendency to pick up on declines in the market.

Evidently the flight from the dollar has taken an outward direction. The reports of foreign selling of our stocks seem reasonable.

Perhaps it is no use to be logical in dealing with such an abnormal inflation market, and I recognize that some stocks may be run up further. (It is even possible that a final "blow-off" may carry the averages to a new peak.)

But you are merely gambling if you play for these things. I would certainly take profits on any strength in stocks in which I had speculative commitments. I would make no further purchases at these levels.

Of course, stocks bought carefully as real investments should be owned outright and held through any reaction.

NEW TOPS SET, WITH TRADING PACE LIVELY

New York, June 12—With the bulls rotating leadership from group to group, the stock market in Wall St. surged forward 1 to 6 points to new highs for the year today in a continuation of the tremendous dealings which have marked the inflation boom.

Opening of the World Economic Conference in London with all its uncertainties was ignored in favor of a new slump in the dollar to new lows and additions to the revival in business, particularly in steel.

NEW HIGHS SET

Strength in bonds, which shook off last week's declining tendencies under the leadership of speculative issues, helped the bulls. Bank and curb stocks were strong. Commodities put on a reactionary performance but this had little influence except in holding down the farm stocks.

The steels set the early pace with steel common and preferred rising sharply to new highs. The utilities went along to new peaks for the year. Consolidated Gas, United Gas Improvement and United Corp. leading and Commonwealth & Southern continuing to develop huge dealings.

Heavy profit-taking developed on the bulge and caused some recessions from the highs. This was off-set, however, by a buying rush in the oils and rails, followed by flurries in the silk, realty and leather issues. Virtually every group on the list was taken in hand and given a whirl at some time during the day.

CARRIERS SHOW GAINS

Continued improvement in carrier traffic was reflected by firmness of rail shares. Transportation stocks up 1 to around 2 including Chesapeake & Ohio, Louisville & Nashville, Delaware & Hudson, Santa Fe and Union Pacific.

Among utility gainers of around a point were North American, Consolidated Gas, United Corporation and Public Service of New Jersey.

Advances were also recorded by U. S. Steel, American Telephone, Allied Chemical Case Bethlehem Steel Westinghouse and American Smelting. There was a better demand for some of the alcohol issues, National Distillers U S Industrial Alcohol and American Commercial Alcohol getting up 1 to around 3 points.

Chesapeake & Ohio reported revenue freight carloadings for the week ended June 10 about 3000 above those of the previous week and nearly 8000 higher than in the same 1932 period. Santa Fe's carloadings were up around 2000 for the same week and around 560 over those of the 1932 week.

While the slump of American money to unprecedented low levels in terms of sterling and European gold currencies has occasioned mixed feelings in banking circles it is believed in some quarters that the wild fluctuations of exchanges may do much to bring about a speedy settlement of the currency situation.

The dollar is now at a discount of about 20 per cent in its relation to gold funds, in other words it is worth around 80 cents. The question that is perplexing bankers, exporters and importers is the point at which the gold value of the dollar will settle.

High banking officials have denied reports that the Government was using a secret stabilization fund to put dollar rates where they will do the most good in negotiations with other countries. As a matter of fact, it is said, American currency is merely being permitted to find its own level.

Cotton Higher in New York Trading

New York, June 12—Cotton futures presented a steady tone in dealings today with the run of contracts about a quarter a bale above previous closing levels. The market here failed to follow completely an advance of $1 a bale in Liverpool, opening up 4 to 10 points and then moving moderately lower in the subsequent trading. Late prices were up 4 to 6 points, with July up 4 at 9.29, October up 4 at 9.53, December up 6 at 9.70 and January up 5 at 9.75.

"Easy Money" Move Is to Aid Business

Washington, June 12 (US)—An "easy money" policy is announced by Chairman Jesse H. Jones of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation as a part of the administration program to stimulate business.

By cutting the interest rate on loans by one-half of 1 per cent Jones said it was expected that borrowing corporations would be able to institute economies and effect reorganizations.

Grains Are Lower in Chicago Market

Chicago, June 12 (AP)—Influenced by a change to cooler weather with rains in scattered districts, wheat prices averaged lower today. A steep rise in British exchange was virtually ignored. Opening ¼ off to ⅛ up, wheat afterward declined all around. Corn started ⅛-¼ down and subsequently sagged further.

Closing in London Exchange Is Mixed

London, June 12—The closing was mixed on the stock exchange here today. Gilt-edged securities drooped on lack of support, while industrials and gold mining shares were also easy owing to realizations. The closing in Paris was sustained, and unsettled in Berlin.

Silver Up in London

London, June 12 (AP)—Bar silver firm, ⅛ higher at 19 7-16d.

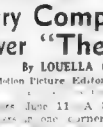
Warners and the Twentieth Century Company in Battle Over "The Bowery"

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor, Universal Service

Los Angeles, June 11. A battle royal is promised with Warner Bros. at one corner and the Twentieth Century Company at the other side of the ring. The fight started with the announcement that Joseph Schenck-Darryl Zanuck intended to film "The Bowery," based on a novel by Chuck Connors starring Wallace Beery and George Raft.

Jack Warner, head of the film company, has bought the picture rights to the novel by Leonard Ahlgren and the New York publication has been heavily advertising the purchase of the picture. Jack Warner, however, has no desire to see Mack Sennett's picture of the days of the Bowery. Warner wants to be the first to make a gangster picture in the days of Bowery-George Raft type.



Louella O. Parsons

Darryl Zanuck, however, is saying that he personally bought the novel from Chuck Connors two weeks after it was published, and he offers a letter from the author bearing out his statement. Darryl Zanuck says Connors promised him that he resigned in favor of the new Twentieth Century Company. He says he will sue in the law courts to get the Chuck Connors story away from him. Further trouble is brewing over the Twentieth Century plan to film P. G. Wodehouse's "Piccadilly Jim," with Robert Montgomery and Frank Morgan, both of which Mr. Zanuck plans to produce.

Colleen's First

Colleen Moore looks like a winner for having signed a contract without making a single picture. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer signed her when she was a stage star in "Chicago." Mouse Weldon, a year ago, and she has since made a personal appearance for the M-G-M organization. She has just finished a picture at Fox, which she thinks will be her favorable. She is now definitely set for her first M-G-M picture. It is to be "The Lights Over Broadway Clock," with Lee Tracy. Some years I told you about that Elsie Salerno, who was married to Ben Hecht adapted. Seven days to it and it goes into production almost immediately with Harry Rapf as producer.

For Ruth Chatterton

No more "Lilly Turners" for Ruth Chatterton. That is no more ladies of uncertain virtue on the screen until she has a chance to make another picture as an interlude. She rejected The House on Fifty-sixth Street, and in its place will do "The Female Is Tentative Lady," an original comedy by Gene Markey and Kathryn Scola. Ruth returned many pounds lighter from her tours abroad. She acquired a sweet throat and was in three weeks in Spain and Paris. Donald Crisp, says the time one and her husband of him had no time of returning to the U. S.

Chatter in Hollywood

A definite denial of any marital rift in the Tyrone Power home was made today by Mrs. Eddie Sutherland, the former Audrey Henderson. Audrey is leaving for Honolulu, where she says she was ordered by her physician to recuperate from a threatened nervous breakdown. She emphatically denies the current gossip that she and Eddie have parted and says she will be back in three weeks and there has never been any trouble. Some of her friends say otherwise.

Snapshots of Hollywood

JOAN BENNETT going in for reducing in the new wave that is on Hollywood, a white dress by Irene looked like a paper model; she lunched at the Beverly Derby, where her costume was admired; KAY FRANCIS and RUTH CHATTERTON lunching together; RUTH has moved back to her own home in Beverly and has done the house over. NANCY CARROLL wearing a pink corduroy suit over pink summer frocks, dining with her husband, BOLTON MALLORY, and the LEW AYRES; APPEARANCE at the M-G-M commissary. She has just finished a picture at Fox, which she thinks will be her favorable. She is now definitely set for her first M-G-M picture. It is to be "The Lights Over Broadway Clock," with Lee Tracy. Some years I told you about that Elsie Salerno, who was married to Ben Hecht adapted. Seven days to it and it goes into production almost immediately with Harry Rapf as producer.

Down Memory Lane!

With MONTAGUE GLASS

Memory Lane runs back between the hedgegrows of the shires past the copses and the gorse and the bracken and all those swell old names that English writers use to describe their countryside—Yes, it's always somewhat surprising that I, the creator of Potash & Perlmutter, came from England, although it never has been any secret.

It (Memory Lane) is more likely to lead to the Princess Theater on Manchester where I attended regularly at the age of nine. The experience qualified me as a dramatic critic with an exasperating long memory harking back to the days of Sir Henry Irving and Ellen Terry in their prime but too job never bought me.

My mother was quite proud of the fact that her family had been in England since the days of Oliver Cromwell. Her great grandfather was the founder of Moses & Son, merchant tailors who started the ready-to-wear business in London 100 years ago.

My father was head of a big house with branches in Germany Belfast and in New York. That how we happened to come to be last place in 1890 and FIRST CLASS steerage, which is why this city seems to be more important than Manchester incidentally.

City College, where the chosen people all seem to be trained, in the mind Stephen S. Wise was a fellow student. He already had the leonine mane of pre-Einstein days and there was a rumor stubborn No one knew how old he was at the time.

After a period as a term apprentice to the law, as attorneys firm Pitt-Cobbett-Quincy-Choate in the city of Dover Success came from [illegible]

The majority of the People was one of our clients. And Henry I. Harriman, the lawyer in whom all the people of Boston who were [illegible] remember one example.

"Would wife has an inchoate right of dower outstanding?"

"Mister Justice please, my wife is a very neat woman. You would never see her with a safety pin out of place."

One day I was in North American Coal Company's office in a store I [illegible] feet wide. That gave me [illegible]

Frank Anson of P. A. & read the first Potash and Perlmutter story, laughed uproariously and told me that I would have no trouble selling it. But I did not.

The first two Potash and Perlmutter stories were finally published in the Business Men's Magazine of Detroit, Mich. And then the magazine promptly went out of business. Yes, I got paid.

Finally a famous weekly bought one. The stories ran there and later in the Cosmopolitan Magazine for years. Potash and Perlmutter dialogues were published in the Sunday New York American and syndicated in other newspapers for 15 years.

In 1922 the Dodge brothers insisted that I write a play for their annual convention on Potash and Perlmutter in the automobile business. I warned them that it would cost too much. They still insisted and they spent $50,000 on the production. It made a great hit with the dealers.

I remember asking Marc Connelly if he could suggest a girl to play the stenographer in that production. He insisted that the telephone operator of a West Side hotel could play the part. We used her and she has done rather well since. She was Eleanor Boardman.

The original play, "Potash and Perlmutter," produced in 1913, has played and is still playing, after twenty years, in every part of the shop. It has been translated into German, French, Russian, Polish, Hungarian, Rumanian and in fact all the European languages except Spanish and Italian. It was performed many times in the Scandinavian countries and performances have been given in Palestine in Lebanon Hebrideesh or Biblical Hebrew. It ran two and a half years at the Cohan Theater in New York and three years at the Queens Theater in London. Altogether there were six P. and P. plays and all of them were produced successfully in Australia, New Zealand and South Africa and in the Far East as well. And no in Russia without as much as by your leave they are producing musical comedies such as "Potash and Perlmutter In Odessa." In Russia the plays are always billed "by Montague and Glass."

All of the same general strata, composed of Prussian army officers. The principal believes it to be her duty to instill the goose-step spirit of the fathers into the daughters. Regardless of emotional conflicts within the girls she pursues a ruthless discipline leading to catastrophe.

RICH MUSICAL FILM

"Be Mine Tonight" Is Merriest and Classiest of Screen's English Musical Films

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

"Be Mine Tonight," new picture at the Tremont, is the most delightful musical film yet made in the English language. It races along, much after the order of a babbling brook in the cool shadows, and is withal so artlessly conceived and achieved, that it leaves as pleasant an impression as screen musical can hope to leave. Most cunningly directed, against natural backgrounds, with a human touch in the casting and a marvelous touch of gold in the singing, "Be Mine Tonight" should establish itself as one of the joys of the summer and one of the successful movies of the year.

* * *

Bearing the Universal label the film leaves its own imprint of artistic performance by new names which are names worth while. Its mechanism is as different from the ordinary operetta or musical comedy movie as day from night. Its entrancing melodies [illegible] the melodies out of the action of plot-play and easily that the words seep in [illegible] the dialogue [illegible] there is none of the abrupt singing of the accustomed musical. Its comedy, generously given, evolves a rare spontaneity. Its story is light, frothy at times, never taking itself too seriously, always on the go. As a matter of fact, speeding cameras are a large part of the charm of this, one of the most charming of native Gaspe productions.

John Kiepura—a name to remember, for he comes to Hollywood soon, and should quickly rise to importance in hero roles is cast as an opera star, fleeing his masterful woman manager, and plunging into romance and attending adventure. His traveling pal is a crook, and complications promote the keenest sort of diversion. A mayor and a whole town are among the deceived when the thief poses as the singer, and at last is unmasked in hilarious climax.

Kiepura has the finest singing voice we have yet heard from the screen. He has personality, too, and looks, and sufficient acting ability. He radiates the thing that audiences like; and along with it a contagious spirit of happiness. Jot it down as a sure expectation, that he will rise fast in the movie world.

Sonnie Hale is the comedian, a real actor, much upon the Edward Everett Horton type. That there are so many laughs in our chefits to his work. Moreover, he can do a pretty good job at singing, as his duet with Kiepura is a highlight of the cinema season. Hale is famous in Britain, as Kiepura is upon the Continent. The latter, it should be stated, was not so long ago one of the star tenors in the Chicago Opera Company.

Magda Sndyer is beautiful and makes a satisfactory romantic lead. Edmund Gwenn, London stage player and seen before in British pictures, is superb as the Mayor, and the rest of the folk are up to par, and some are above.

The direction is credited to Anatole Litvak. Whoever he is he is a genius that Hollywood can well use. For his handling of "Be Mine Tonight" is as effective as anything you have seen this year.

Music! Here it is, gay and superfine, whether it be original or borrowed. Fun! Picnic of it, intriguingly merry. Romance! Just the right amount, and never mushy. Acting! There it is, simple and entirely lacking in artificiality. Singing! The best yet, such are the ingredients that help make "Be Mine Tonight" the merriest and classiest of musicals for screen purposes, in the English language.

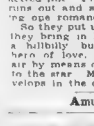
Ginger Rogers Scores Again in "Professional Sweetheart"; Stage Bill Pleases

By HARRIS MORGAN

Fun, based for the most part on sly satire, is the screen keynote, and all-around variety class the stage cue, to the new program at RKO Keith's currently. The picture is "Professional Sweetheart," in which Ginger Rogers has a change from goody-goody girl to one scowing moderately wild oats, and which the best comedy comes in laughs on the radio game. The footlight fare is highlighted by a most entertaining joust tween jazz and classic music, the issue of the "battle" being left to the audience to decide.

The film is best regarded as a novelty in the season's product out of Hollywood. Miss Rogers is the Purity Girl of the air, exploited into fame as the nation's Simon pure Sweetheart. Her contract has about all the things that modern ads are supposed to do, including drinking, smoking, petting, and even dancing. She is the simpleton and sweetest of all maidens. But the damsel has ambitions and complexes, she is just boiling inside to have her fling. This keeps the broadcasting staff busy holding her to the fettled line. Finally, her contract runs out and she insists on having one romance at least.



Ginger Rogers

So they put up a trick on her they bring in Norman Foster as a bullishly build hero up as a hero of love, and give him the air by means of a radio wedding to the star. More merriment develops in the clash of the rough wooing of the bridegroom and the lively bride.

Miss Rogers and Foster hat their roles nicely and get a aid from Frank McHugh, Gregory Ratoff and Franklin Pangborn, besides a few other as

The stage is even more excellent William B. Rayne's presentiousness in the hand of the presentation. Bart Rapini's New Englanders are combined with Larry Flint's hot band, both on the boards. Rapini handles his end, leading the big orchestra through "hot" numbers, and others in which Ray Hamilton sings "blues" selections.

Flint then has his innings, the classical is unhipped, while Benny and His Gang do the singing. The whole idea is cleverly carried out.

The other acts are each as every one expert. George Beatty is hilarious with his drunken-sailor turn. Kay and Xavre are dancers and Hall and Dennison are versatile at music, dance and comic patter.

One of the finest of all the acts is that of Violet Ray and Norman Foster, real headliners, as they are among the best of balancers, combining skill with ability to get abundant laughs.

George Reni Champion Breaks Mat Precedent Meets DeGlane Again | Sharkey's Opponents Carnera and Baer Callahan Back

By JACK CONWAY

Ed Don George will probably be ordered into exile when our various champions in sports hold their next reunion. The fellow is positively shocking, and must be made an object lesson of to preserve the future standing of title holders. He has tossed precedent to the winds once more and signed to defend his precious championship against Henri DeGlane of France in a finish bout, best two falls out of three, at a Paul Bowser show at the Boston Garden on June 23.

MR. BOSTON

George won the title from DeGlane last March. The average champion does not approve of giving a return match to an opponent he was fortunate to defeat. Under the rules followed by champions down through the years George should give DeGlane the well-known runaround. He should insist that DeGlane at least win from Jim Browning, Jim Londos, Joe Savoldi and Gus Sonnenberg before being considered for a championship match. Such a program would put obstacles in George's path, and also increase the likelihood of the Frenchman going of old age before being able to corner George. . .

George has wrecked precedent. He first did so when he won the title by upsetting Gus Sonnenberg in Los Angeles two years ago last January. Strangler Lewis at the time was the grand old war horse of the wrestling wars. He had accumulated quite a lot of fat around his mid-section, but he could still stagger into the ring and wreck the headliners with his famous headlock. The youthful George consented to meet Lewis. He wanted to prove he was the master of wrestling's grand old man. When George found he was mistaken, he had lost his title.

After two years of effort, George got the break that gave him back his title. He happened to be DeGlane's opponent the night the latter had his collar bone shattered. Perhaps George would have won anyway, but it cannot be said that the fact DeGlane broke his collar bone after scoring the first fall didn't make matters a bit easier.

George Eager to Prove Frenchman's Master

Following his defeat, DeGlane started taking nasty pastes at George. Instead of running to cover the champion stepped right out into the open and announced he can lick DeGlane. Furthermore he has given him a title bout for June 23. Personally I think George was daffy to do this. If I were in Don's place I would at least pick up all the easy money in sight before tackling DeGlane. I would like to feel I had a healthy bank account the night I stepped into the ring with the Frenchman. Then if things went wrong I could forget wrestling for a while, take a trip around the world and make a bit of whoopee.

George's actions have caused me to believe he really feels he is a better wrestler than DeGlane. Perhaps the fact the Christmas Fund committee of the Boston Evening American was anxious to stage the George-DeGlane show in co-operation with Paul Bowser had a great deal to do with the champion agreeing to accept the Frenchman as an opponent at this time. I find wrestlers will go a long ways to help a worthy charity, even to the point of putting themselves on the spot.

Fate Provides Sharkey Another Opponent

Jack Sharkey has been the favorite of the gods when it has come to securing ring opponents. Since crashing his way into stardom by a victory over Harry Wills almost seven years ago, there has always been a first-class opponent for Sharkey to meet. Jack Dempsey even came out of retirement once so that Sharkey could help draw a million dollar gate. In 1931 when an attempt was made to eliminate Sharkey as a title contender, Mickey Walker invaded the heavyweight class and Primo Carnera broke with the New York Garden and joined the Jimmy Johnston forces so that he could battle the Boston heavyweight.

Sharkey has Primo Carnera as an opponent in a 15-round title bout at the Garden Bowl in Long Island on June 29, and if he is successful in that contest he will have the colorful Max Baer looking for a match with him.

A championship is not of much financial value unless one has suitable opponents. When Tunney was champion, he was fortunate to have Jack Dempsey as a foe in a return contest. This match netted Gene $989,000. That is a record high for a champion's purse.

Dempsey made some big purses, but he was obliged to take long layoffs between bouts on account of the scarcity of suitable opponents. Dempsey had been out of the ring for three years when he fought Gene Tunney in Philadelphia. If Sharkey defeats Carnera, he can meet Baer in September or next year.

I find Sharkey is as much interested in fighting today as he was when he was hitting his way to his match with Dempsey. He has not any intention of retiring as long as there are profitable bouts ahead. The champion has large home expenses, and he is anxious to earn sufficient money so that he will be able to maintain his present scale of living after he has retired.

Random Shots at the Target

Andy Callahan will risk his title as New England welterweight champion when he clashes with Frankie Britt of Fall River in a 10-round bout at the Bigberry Stadium, Fall River, tomorrow night . . . Sam Price will promote the show . . . He has Jack Gagnon signed to meet Vic Bernard of Worcester in the semifinal . . . Johnny Buckley will leave for Fall River following Jack Sharkey's training session at Orangeburg, N. Y., today . . . He will second Callahan against Britt . . . Dr. Joseph A. Bruno of Cambridge tells Charley Duffy of this newspaper that Henri DeGlane is the most perfect physical specimen he has ever examined . . . Henri has a chest expansion of 10½ inches . . . Does anybody question that Babe Ruth is baseball's greatest card after the mighty outpouring of fans at Fenway Park yesterday? . . . Alex MacLean has Pat Reilly of Texas battling Bull Martin of Jersey in his main bout at the Rollaway Rink, Revere, tomorrow night . . . This bout should furnish a workout for the riot squad . . . Everybody but Eddie Collins hit a home run at Fenway Park during the twin bill with the Yankees . . . And there are folks who say the baseball they use in the American League isn't lively . . . Between court tangles and barnstorming tours Baer will manage to keep in the news.

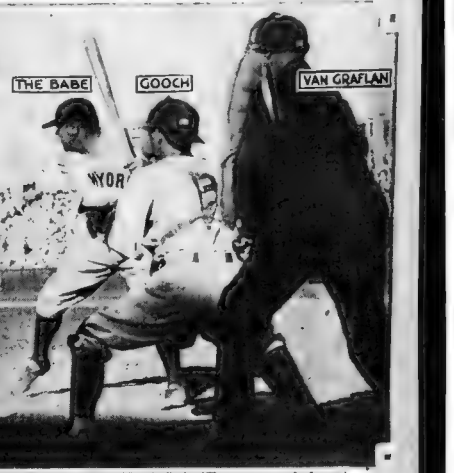
What 31,000 Fans Came to See



And to think they were saying that Babe Ruth's salary demands were away too high, last Spring! Note the ball halfway to the plate, in second game of Sunday twin bill at Fenway. Babe has his weight back, and bat poised. The fans grow tense. For it's their hero, in action. Babe failed to homer, as the Yanks won the first, 8-7, and lost the second, 11-9.

COLLEGE LOOP IN STRETCH

New York, June 12 (AP)—Five teams in the Eastern Intercollegiate Baseball League will engage in a brisk campaign over an extended front this week, capped by the gala Yale-Princeton test in the jungle next Saturday. The championship however, will rest with one of the teams which has closed its season—Columbia.

The Lions sit in the throne-room today as a result of Princeton's unexpected 10—7 victory over a high-lacquered Yale nine at New Haven last Saturday.

As a result, Columbia may cop out the championship. The light blue nine while has won nine and lost only two games. The Elis could compile a record of only nine won and two lost, even if they should sweep the rest of their schedule.

Princeton, meanwhile has its attention centered upon an attempt to defeat in straight games and to clean up a double-header against Cornell in a business-like bid to escape from the cellar. The Ithicans will return to Nassau day after tomorrow to play off the two games postponed on May 6.

Dartmouth will attempt to consolidate its position behind Columbia and Yale by meeting Harvard and Cornell this week, the Crimson at Cambridge on Thursday and the Indians at Hanover on Saturday.

Braeburn Golfer Takes Eastern Golf Lead

Mrs. William E. Ferris, Jr., of Brae-Burn carded an 82 to lead the early starters in today's opening round of the Women's Eastern Golf Association's 36-hole championship at Brae-Burn.

With more than a third of the starting field of 70 home, Dorothy Hunter of Albemarle, last year's runner-up to Mrs. Glenna Collett Vare, today carded a 78 to gain a three-stroke lead in the opening round of the 36-hole medal play for the Women's Eastern Golf Championship on the Brae Burn course.

Three tugged holes, incoming on the 36-yard 18th, where she holed out for a 6, after driving on the wood, and voiding three traps prevented her from matching the par figures of 75.

Miss N. S. Heidberger of Hollywood, N. J., was first starter in the Metropolitan district's strong delegation, which includes Maureen Orcutt the three time winner, shot an 85 on her first tour of the 6058-yard layout.

The long hitting Charlotte Hatting of Baltusrol, N. J., who went to the semifinals in the 1932 national at nearby Peabody, appeared safe in second place with a 79, three over womens pars for the 6068 yard layout.

MISS ORCUTT THIRD

Maureen Orcutt of White Beeches, N. J., who has won three Eastern titles during her brilliant career, appeared headed for third place in the opening play with an 81. Edith Guier of Huntington Valley, Pa., and Mrs. William E. Ferris, Jr., of the home club, followed with 82's and Rosamond Valsey of Concord, who has been a frequent competitor in this event, carded an 83, as did Dorothy Richards of Weston, a former Massachusetts champion.

Frances Williams of St. Davids, Pa., 1930 victor in the Eastern play at Brookline, wobbled on her inward trip and finished up with an 86, which was matched by Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd of Merion Pa., former United States and British champion, who has been runner up in this tournament several times in the last decade.

The summaries: Mrs. G. P. Buell, Alhemarle, 48 37—85. Dorothy Richards, Weston, 42 41—83. Mrs. R. H. Barlow, Merion, Pa., 45 40—85. Kathryn Bragaw, Essex, N. J., 42 47—89. DODGERS EDGE TRIBE IN RACE

Special to Boston American

New York, June 12—The Boston Braves have all day today to make the trek over the bridge from Brooklyn, where they concluded a three-game series with the Dodgers in a Sabbath doubleheader. They open a three-game series with the league leading Giants at the Polo Grounds tomorrow.

The Warriors are finding the Flatbush entry a far different outfit than the one they whipped 15 times in 22 attempts last season. The best the McKechnieman could do yesterday was to break even. That cost them the series, two games to one, and pushed them from sixth to seventh place, below the Careymen.

A five-run rally in the fifth frame climaxed by a homer by Randy Moore, enabled the Braves to win the first Sunday tilt, 6 to 4, while losing the second, 5-2. Ben Cantwell rushed to the rescue of Fred Frankhouse when the Dodgers put over three runs in their fifth and received credit for the win.

Loose fielding let the Dodgers put over three runs in the fourth inning of the nightcap and chalk up a victory at the expense of Old Tom Zachary. Walter Beck gave only six hits in turning in his third win of the season over the tribe. One of the blows was Wally Berger's 11th home run of the season, which made him the league's leading circuit driver.

Game starts at 3.15.

A somewhat battered Boston College baseball team attempts to set back a Holy Cross team that is in full stride this afternoon at University Heights in the second game of the Jesuit Colleges baseball series.

The game is the feature attraction of Alumni Day.

Emil Roy of B. C. and Ed Quinn of the Purple were pitching selections.

There seems to be no doubt that the Crusaders are at their peak for they took the crack Friar nine, 9-0, last Saturday. The Boston College team fell before Providence yesterday, 4-0.

In the past three weeks there has cropped up a batsman's "murderer's row" in the Holy Cross lineup, in Doc Corrigan, Ed Moriarity, Frank Camaranno and Ed Britt.

Quinn, a Wakefield boy, faces the Maroon and Gold for the first time.

Coach Frank McCrehan has Rob Duffy to send in the box if Roy falters.

McCrehan is sure that his outfield, rated as one of the best that Boston College has had, can produce this afternoon. Johnny Freitas, Bill Foehner and Bobby Curran form a fine garden trio.

31,000 Fans See Sox Split With Yankees

By JOE CASHMAN

It will be a sorry day indeed for baseball when George Herman Ruth is finally forced to retire from active service.

The Babe may not be greater than the sport, but he is the one and only individual it has produced who solely through his own ability and personality enriches every rival club at least $50,000 yearly and his own bosses to the tune of that sum.

And none of us likely to live long enough to see the big fellow's equal as a gate attraction.

Never was Ruth's extraordinary drawing power more evident than in the Sunday doubleheader at Fenway Park. There was no conceivable reason for more than 10,000 turning out other than a desire to see the Bambino in action. The Sox had lost three games in a row and were in the cellar. The Yanks had beaten the natives eight times in as many starts.

And the attendance totaled only 31,000 because there wasn't room for any more in the park and thousands had to be turned away.

Worth $52,500 a season? Hell's cheap at that salary months.

FANS SEE DIZZY DUELS

The 31,000 fans, largest crowd at the Fens in five years, turned out as we said to see Ruth. They stayed to watch the daffiest twin bill in the memory of man, and wended their way homeward singing the praises of the Red Sox in very hoarse voices.

If anybody went away dissatisfied he had better swear off baseball for good.

The full five hours allowed by law for Sunday ball were used up and only 15 innings played. It was the first time that any game had to be halted under the present law.

Ruth didn't hit a home run. But the first marker of the afternoon was a circuit drive by Smead Jolley and the last run of the matinee was another four-bagger by the Smeader, which gave the Red Sox an 11 to 9 victory.

In between these blows, Lou Gehrig, Dixie Walker and Ben Chapman of the Yanks and Dusty Cooke of the Sox put the ball out of the park.

SOX TOSS AWAY LEAD

The Sox had a four-run lead going into the fifth inning of the opener and closed it away. They finally went into the ninth ahead by two runs and lost out, 8 to 7. Johnson errors paved the way for a third run.

At the end of their ball of the third stanza of the nightcap, the Yanks were leading 8 to 1. This didn't scare more than 3000 customers away. The rest remained for the Sox glorious comeback.

The natives pounded their old mate, Charlie Ruffing, from the box in the fourth, when they staged a five-run rally, featured by Cooke's homer with two on, after the first two batters had been retired. They picked up two more in the fifth at the expense of hits by Pinch-batters Fothergill and Ferrell, to go a run ahead.

With two out in the Yanks' sixth which the clock showed would be their last inning, Bill Werber took a wild throw to let the enemy tie the count.

Alexander opened the Sox half with his third single and Jolley who had three safeties to his credit, lifted a Moore sinker 10 tiers up into the centerfield seats. And everybody was glad of Werber's miscue.

Most of the Yanks' runs were served them on a platter by either the Sox or the umpires. The Mc-

New York, June 12 (AP)—The Red Sox, with the Yankees as a co-attraction, drew the largest crowd of Sunday, some 21,000.

Manusmen earned most of their runs, but they had breaks, too.

The drama at times indicated that two championship clubs were battling. On other occasions one would swear that a couple of cricket teams were trying to play ball, and not doing so well.

The Yanks made only two hits in five innings of the opener off Dusty Rhodes and scored three runs. Nine passes are the answer. Johnny Welch gave seven bingles including three homers, and Pipgras, who allowed the only real pitching of the Melee, lost the game. The same Pipgras won the second tilt by pitching to only one batter, who reached

BAER SOCK TOO MUCH FOR GOB TO HANDLE

By HYPE IGOE

Max Baer HITS TOO HARD for any man in the ring today. They can't keep him off the heavyweight throne unless he sky-larks himself out a kingdom that is his for the asking.

His utter annihilation of Max Schmeling proves that Baer can whip any man living. And who is there to thrash? Jack Sharkey, Primo Carnera and—there the craze for the title ends.

Sharkey has earned a world of money and I don't think he is considering more than two future bouts, the one with Carnera and, in use his own words, "another bout in September or early next year."

From that I suppose he believes he will outpoint Carnera. I think he will do that just as easily as he did the first time. Only a lucky blow will win for Carnera.

BAER WOULD WIN

If Sharkey defeats Carnera and fights Baer in defense of his world's title, Baer will win. I'll tell you why.

Sharkey kept Schmeling at bay with his LEFT. Sharkey kept Carnera at bay with his left. He kept Dempsey at bay with his left until he foolishly looked around to the referee and started to argue about the legality of one of Jack's body blows. He was belied out with the protest trickling from his lips.

Sharkey's main defense, then is his LEFT. I claim that there is no left hand jab in the world capable of keeping Baer away once the men possesses him.

No left hand is going to subdue the California grizzly. He can punch his way through the weak the best defense in the world, and that means Sharkey's.

CARNERA EASIER FOR

Carnera probably would be a much easier fight for Baer than Sharkey. Sharkey is a boxer, too, heady and capable.

His spells of flightiness come out when something beside the fight itself transpires.

In the fight itself, Sharkey is a gentleman.

Messrs. Sharkey and Carnera will have it out. The winner will have to step lively to fare with Mr. Baer. It isn't a pleasant outlook for either Jack or Primo.

Pigeon Racing Fans Birds Cost Up to $1000 Pay Plenty for Fun

By JOE MOONEY

Maybe you would like something about pigeons and people for hot weather reading. Racing pigeons, that is. Most of this high flying history we pass on from Mr. Lewis F. Curtis, of Chestnut Hill, who owns "Journey's End" cote, foremost racing pigeon fancier in this country today.

It seems there are over 300 Bostonians interested in the racing pigeon dodge. There is no telling how many racing pigeons go whizzing to Greater Boston aviaries on weekly races, but you can get some idea from the fact that an ordinary race will see 3,000 birds in the air.

Pigeon racing is the national sport of Belgium. Began there about 1890, when they used the birds in the army.

Pigeon racing is not a simple matter of picking up a couple of birds and letting them race regardless. You start by belonging to one of the racing clubs, of which there are eight in Greater Boston, all affiliated with the parent association of which Mr. Curtis is president.

Then you have to have a cote for your birds to fly home to from starting points varying from 200 to 800 miles away, at a clip anywhere from 45 to 80 miles an hour). These cotes can be pretty expensive too.

And you have to have a clock! These are specially made for this purpose in Belgium, and cost $125 bucks. So you can think twice before going in for the pigeon racing dodge.

These pigeons cost anywhere from a dozen to $1000, depending on it's lineage. A pigeon fancier can get almost any price for a bird like Mr. Curtis' "Reclassification" national racing champion of 1932. Notice the name and the price tag please, and see how far were getting from the pigeons that just race around the Mall on the Common.

Races are held in the spring and fall to Boston from such places as Lyons, N. Y., Romeo, Michigan and Galesburg Ill., places that can thank pigeon racing for their chief claim to fame.

The United States coast and geodetic survey is mixed up in the pigeon racing dodge, too. These people measure distances for races down to .0001 of a mile.

A pigeon's speed is measured in yards per minute, figured by reducing the race distance into yards and multiplying that by 1056, and dividing that by the time in flight and an easy

Mutuality rates are high among racing pigeons. You're lucky to lose only 10 per cent of your birds in a race. Either hawks get them or shotguns. Or sometimes the racers go native, and fly into strange coops, and loaf around for months before returning home. Some of them have been known as late as five years getting back.

The greatest award a pigeon racer can receive is the Congressional Medal for racers. There have only been three given, one of which Mr. Curtis has. These commemorate "Cheer Amie" the pigeon which saved the Lost Battalion in the Argonne.

Pigeon racing clubs around here are located in Medford, Taunton, Quincy, South Boston, Middleboro, Malden, and Lawrence.

One thing more—it's a poor racing pigeon which can't do 200 miles, three times as far as a human being. Wad like to see someone prove this, though.

The three Canadian entrants are C. Ross Sandy) Somerville, holder of the United States amateur title, Jack Nash, a fellow club player of Somerville from London, Ont., and Don Anderson of St. Thomas.

Somerville, who also will play in the British amateur beginning June 19, has competed in two one-day tournaments on the side. Saturday he finished [illegible] behind Sweetser in the St. George's Vase 36-hole competition at Sandwich and yesterday was tenth in the field in the Prince of Wales challenge cup competition at Royal Zinque. Perkins Nash, although behind Somerville at Royal St. George, scored 75-72 147 yesterday to tie for first place with T. A. Torrance noted British amateur.

London, June 12 (AP)—A record overseas challenge for the British open golf title will be made at St. Andrews July 3-8 with 38 of the 287 entries from foreign lands, led by a United States delegation of 14.

The total of 287 was only nine short of the record list at Hoylake in 1930 when Bob Jones won his last British open title.

The United States delegation includes the defending titleholder Gene Sarazen, Walter Hagen six-time winner of the open and other members of the Ryder Cup team and [illegible] Dunlap, Jr., former Horse Guards [illegible] the former United States steeplechase champion and one of the leading amateur [illegible] for the [illegible]

HARVARD, YALE CREWS READY

New London, Ct., June 12 (INS)—Two or three days of hard practice work, then a gradual tapering-off process with a secret trial or two and the Harvard and Yale crews will be ready for their annual four-mile classic on the Thames here Friday.

The personnel of both college [illegible] crews yesterday with each coach on the scene preparatory to the final days of training.

Yale, despite the numerous changes made by Head Coach Leaf in the varsity boating during the season is believed by experts to have built up a crew which Charlie Whittemore's Harvard oarsmen will have trouble defeating.

If Friday's race were against any crew but Harvard, the undefeated Eli season would indicate almost certain victory over the Crimson on the Thames. But memory of the 1932 race, when Yale had similarly undistanced opposition but lost decisively to a previously disappointing Harvard crew, remains to befuddle all predicting.

Tickets sales of the observation train were reported picking up somewhat over the week-end, and indications were today that the spectators, while not in record number, will be out in force.

Diamond Dust

By JOE CASHMAN

Yankee faltering has put plenty of interest back in the American League race in the past few days. The world champions have dropped two four of their last six games in the Athletics and Red Sox and then [illegible] over the second-place Senators [illegible] have been reduced to three games.

The Cardinals passed up a fine chance to regain the National League roof by dropping both ends of a Sunday twin-bill to the Pirates, 12-7 and 3-0. The Bucs scored 10 runs in the ninth to overcome a six-run lead and win the opener.

Giants Regain Peak

The Giants regained the top, but they didn't win. They played only one game and dropped that to the last-place Phillies, 7 to 5, after a three-run lead at one time.

Al Simmons hit his eighth and ninth home runs, two singles and knocked in six runs as the White Sox beat the Tigers 6 to 1 in the first game of a twi-night bill. Schoolboy Rowe turned in his third win over the Pale Hose.

Jimmy Foxx hit his 16th homer to tie Babe Ruth for first place in the home run race, but the senators defeated the As, 13 to 8, and knocked them from third to fourth place, below the White Sox.

The Indians made it two in a row for Walter Johnson, their new manager, when they blanked the St. Louis Browns, 1 to 0, in ten innings. Bump Hadley of Lynn, on the St. Louis bill, gave only three hits in nine innings, but lost.

The 30,000 crowd at the Fens was the largest to watch any of the eight major league parks yesterday. A Chicago gathering of 24,000 was the next largest. All told, approximately 130,000 turned out in eight cities.

Gooch Flashes

Johnny Gooch, starting his first game back of the bat since Rick Ferrell joined the Bos, did a heads-up receiving job in the second Sunday tilt. His old National League training made Johnny call for nothing but curves in the pinches, and his judgment silenced the two bats of Lou Gehrig, Babe Ruth and Roy Chapman in the [illegible] box.

Grant Permission for Combination Race

A conference was held between William J. Bingham, owner of athletics of Harvard and Maurice Farmer, head of athletics at Yale in which permission was granted for a combination crew race on Thursday afternoon on the Thames.

The race will be held over the upper two miles of the river course. Originally no race was planned. Varsity and freshman crews and two varsity eights will form eight-oared crews in both camps. The race is scheduled to start at 6.30 o'clock.

Now that little Johnny Goodman has ascended the top rung of golfdom through his achievement at North Shore, the rumors are in circulation that he will turn professional.

Johnny will be better off financially in the long run if he remains in the ranks of the simon pures.

With Mrs. Glenna Collett Vare the champion, and Miss Helen Hicks, Metropolitan champion, out, there will be a wide open tussle for the women's eastern crown. Miss Fanny Williams, who won the event at The Country Club a few years ago, is the first choice.

Although his leg is still in a cast, Joe Corcoran is back on the job. Joe broke his leg playing baseball a few weeks ago, and as he was playing for fun did not make a hit with brother Fred.

It was most gratifying to note the improvement made on the Sharon Country Club course. Sharon is on the up grade after years in doldrums, due to the efforts of Pres. Walter A. White and Al Ferris, chairman of the golf committee. And in his quiet way M. M. Kent has done his bit.

Just because Blue Hill players have been winning numerous net prizes, it is unfair to criticize the handicapping system at the popular Canton course. Blue Hill is an aid a test that the members are able to score many strokes lower on other layouts. For instance, a 20 handicap man at Blue Hill could be a 10 or 12 player at almost any of the numerous drive and pitch courses.

Wagner Recuperating

Dick Wagner, who was Dave Mosser's four ball partner on the Contact A. A. team of the Retail Stores Golf League, is on the mend, following an appendix operation and will return home from the hospital this week.

After his great 66 in the final round of the U. S. Open at North Shore, would Walter Hagen pack them in during an exhibition tour of the country.

Now that he has relinquished his crown, Gene Sarazen will probably cancel his tour.

Young Bob Davis, Walpole, will bear watching in the state junior championship at Blue Hill. Davis, who is only 15 years old, shot an 87 at Sharon and, packs a sound game, one which will take him places in golf.

Hits and Misses -:- -:- -:- -:- -:- Of the Week in Sports

JACK DEMPSEY — TIM MARA

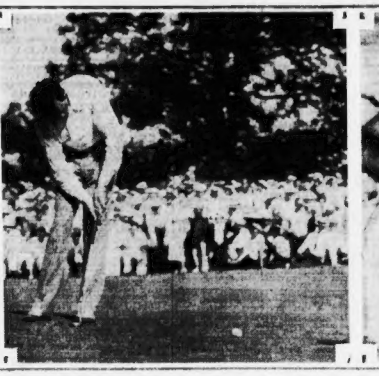
DEMPSEY SHOWS MARA A SCHMELING MISS

Jack Dempsey illustrates on the person of Tim Mara just how Max Baer made Schmeling miss in the upset of the century at Yankee Stadium. The maneuver consisted of grabbing Schmeling's right arm, spinning him with a quick shove and twisting him into position for a quick belt and getaway. Baer helped his fistic fortunes immensely this way.

EDWARD POLLOCK — JIMMY FOXX

JIMMY FOXX JUST COULDN'T MISS ON THIS

Jimmy Foxx, Philadelphia Athletics slugging first sacker, is accepting a chest of silver from Edward Pollock, chairman of the local chapter of Baseball Writers' Association, as reward for Foxx's winning the title of "most valuable player in the American League for 1932." His Athletics team mates are credited with the assist on this fine play.



GULDHALL'S MISS COST THE OPEN GOLF TITLE

Ralph Guldhall, St. Louis pro, runner-up to Johnny Goodman in the Open, is shown missing the cup in the fatal 18th of the final round. A par here would have given him a 287 tie with the Omaha amateur winner. A blade of grass checked the agate just too much, though. And Guldhall bowed. Scene is the North Shore Club at Glenview, Ill.

JACK SHARKEY — HANS BIRKIE

AND THE CHAMP HIMSELF SHOWS A MISS

Jack Sharkey, tuning for his title bout with Carnera in New York, June 29, makes his sparring partner miss as he slips a whistling left. Jack then drives his own left to the partner's (Hans Birkie) Mason-Dixon line. It's a serious Sharkey now that he's seen the Max Baer-Max Schmeling fight. And don't the sparring partners know it?

NEWTON TEAM IN TWI LEAD

Bill Reilley's Newton team today had climbed into the lead of the second division of the Boston Twilight League race by cutting down Ed Cousineau's Sheridan Club of Watertown, 4 to 1.

Waltham dropped Concord a peg further down the standing and hopped into second place but will have to beat Bill Hunnefield's Allston team tomorrow evening at Allston to hold the position.

The Sheridan Club of Watertown will go into Victory Field tomorrow evening and with the heavy hitting Lowell team as the attraction.

There will be neighborly rivalry tomorrow evening at Lincoln Park Somerville when the Hagan team entertains the University City Club.

The Rosebuds defeated St. Alphonsus, 11 to 3, at Wayland to go into a tie with St. Augustines for first place in the East Division of the Boston City league in the loop Sunday feature. Rosebuds have become one of the title threats in the circuit.

RYDER CUP JOB FOR BURKE

New York, June 12 (AP)—Billy Burke, former national open golf champion, today was named to the 10th place on the American Ryder cup team.

The appointment, announced by George R. Jacobus, president of the Professional Golfers' Association of America, came as a surprise, particularly in view of Burke's failure to finish in the money in the 1933 open, concluded yesterday at Chicago.

Burke scored 308 for the 72-hole jaunt and landed in a tie for 35th place.

The P. G. A.'s failure to include Burke when the team was selected several months ago aroused a storm of protest among his fellow pros, particularly Gene Sarazen. Nine members of the team were selected at that time, with the tenth place left open for the winner of this year's open, in the event he turned out to be a native-born professional not already named to the squad.

Saveldi Pits Drop Kick for Browning's Crown

By DAMON RUNYON

New York, June 12 (US)—Tonight at the Yankee Stadium, Jumping Joe Savoldi, who seems to be a sort of Max Baer of the wrestlers, will meet Jim Browning for a world's heavyweight championship.

This bout tonight is under the auspices of the good M. Jacques Armand Curley, and the advance sale indicates a huge crowd.

Jumping Joe was a great football player. He has been one of the most outstanding figures that the mat game has produced.

He is a throwback in color and personality to the spectacular wrestlers like Frank Gotch, and Joe Stecher, and Earl Caddock. His victory over "The Greek Adonis," Jim Londos, was without doubt one of the most startling incidents of wrestling history.

Jim Browning, in the matter of sheer wrestling technique, is undoubtedly one of the greatest, though he has somehow failed to attract as much attention as some of his brethren. Some of the lads who know their wrestling assure me that Browning is one of the greatest that ever lived.

Like several other football players who turned to wrestling, "Jumping Joe" has brought some of the tactics of the gridiron to the mat. He has what is called a "drop kick" that mows his opponents down.

"Jumping Joe" has been training at Gus Wilson's camp at Orangeburg for this bout, which indicates that he takes it very seriously. Oddly enough, Savoldi, the collegian, is the first wrestler to make steady, methodical training a part of his preparation for almost every bout.

"Jumping Joe" has brought back to wrestling the color that it needed. Wrestling is like any other sport, in that the customers soon tire of stodgy performers. They want to see the Ruths, and the Baers, and "Jumping Joe" is of that general type. He is a real showman.

Jim Browning seems somewhat contemptous of the "Jumping Joe" technique. He says the drop kicking will not be worth a nickel against him tonight. Jim says he will pin "Jumping Joe" so fast it will make Joe's head whirl.

All of which ought to make it well worth a peek.

WEST POINT GRADUATION TO BE AIRED

All America to Hear Ceremonies Tomorrow Morning From Military Academy

By N. F. T.

An impressive broadcast originates over the high hills on the Hudson river shores tomorrow morning, 11:15, as cadets of the United States Military Academy celebrate Commencement Day. New England listeners are to hear most of the colorful exercises over WEEI waves.

• • •

Secretary of War George H. Dern is scheduled for the principal address, with remarks by Gen. Douglas MacArthur also featured. An extensive coast to coast network of National Broadcasting Company stations will carry the stirring graduation proceedings. Likewise a detailed description of the various attending scenes is being included.

• • •

What's more, good old WEEI seems to be strutting right square through the radio spotlight center hereabouts today and this evening. At 8:45, for example, that station relays the voice of Miss Mary Curley, daughter of the mayor, speaking in behalf of the charitable Harriet Tubman House cause. At 7:30 the Edison outlet then offers the discourse of Lieut.-Gov. Gaspar Bacon, advocating need for repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment. In between the above hits, Eddie Gilbourne gives his air characterization of "Ted Thompson's Feed for Thought" between 6:30 and 6:45, a humorous rural philosophy skit slated for Monday, Wednesday and Friday airing henceforth.

• • •

Tomorrow finds WEEI feeding the rest of America that gala Advertising Club luncheon at 1:30, when the noted newspaper publisher, Col. Frank Knox, speaks on "Whither Are We Going." This is the first gathering of the Ad group presided over by the new organization head, Walter Myers, representing NBC in New England.

• • •

Martha (WAAB) Lee was not on the air at her appointed time this morning (11 o'clock), having withheld her popular recipe discussion so that WAAB might broadcast the Boston University Commencement ceremonies.

SHERM SAID HE'D PLUMB FORGOT IT

(Lamar, Mo., Democrat.)

Phil Morris, of Kenoma, has sworn to a complaint against Sherm Wagner charging him with stealing his chickens. He says about 15 were taken, during the cold spell. When Sherm was confronted with this charge he said. Yes, that's so, he did take Phil's chickens, but he had plumb forgot it.

He said, however, he only took eight. Mr. Morris said he had been giving Sherm's folks things to eat along about the time Sherm took his chickens.

Some Gorilla Closeups

These Strange 'Cousins,' They Interest Us All

LONDON'S FEMALE GORILLA NAMED "MOINA," SITTING THINKING.

In London's "zoo" the British have a marvelous gorilla house, interesting to those that understand gorillas, extremely interesting and important to those that are foolish about the "common cold."

In this gorilla house our "alleged cousins from Africa" are kept behind plate glass. No human being can breathe in their faces. It has been found that humans, coughing and sneezing around monkey cages, are responsible for the early deaths of big apes, from "flu" and consumption.

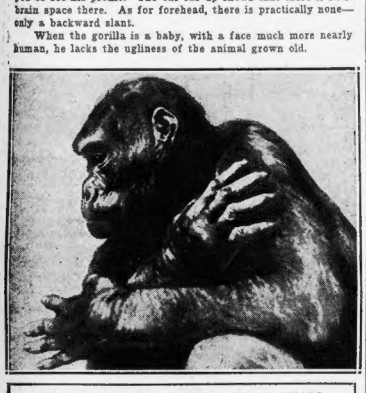
You cannot look with indifference at the faces of these two giant apes, the upper picture the female, older and heavier than her mate.

There is no doubt that this strange creature is different from "other animals."

There is something in that face that shows the effort to think, a fragment of the lower, however feeble, that is called "intellect."

"Mok," the male gorilla, seems not particularly happy, as he holds his giant hands folded across his breast and permits you to see his profile. The ear far up shows that there is little brain space there. As for forehead, there is practically none—only a backward slant.

When the gorilla is a baby, with a face much more nearly human, he lacks the ugliness of the animal grown old.



"MOK," THE MALE GORILLA, SEVEN YEARS OLD, WEIGHT 77 POUNDS

You can say the same thing about human babies. They all look like geniuses with giant foreheads and big, round heads.

The male gorilla, seven years old, weighs 77 pounds. The female, nine years old, weighs 133 pounds. Gorillas have been captured in equatorial Africa standing more than seven feet high and weighing four to five hundred pounds. You can imagine the power of a gorilla three or four times as big as "Moina."

Why were these strange creatures made, their blood so much like human beings, totally unlike that of other animals, their skeletons reproducing every bone in the human skeleton? Were they a separate creation, did Cain and Abel know them and play with them as they did with other animals in the Garden of Eden? Or, as science says, are they the result of evolution, different animals coming up from different directions under different conditions, and progressing so far, no further?

Haldane, a modern biologist of considerable fame, selects the ancestors of the important branches of the human race. He says the white race descends from the chimpanzee, which is the most vicious, by the way, of the apes. The Mongolian race comes from the orang-outang, according to him, and the African race comes from the gorilla, which is the most amiable, trustworthy and powerful of the great apes.

Haldane even says that a sick gorilla assumes exactly the position of a sick African, that a sick chimpanzee acts more like a sick white man, and a sick orang-outang like a Mongolian.

It has probably occurred to you that you have seen faces not unlike that of the thoughtful female gorilla, "Moina."

In any case, you will not have wasted your time looking at these pictures, if they impress on you the fact that you should keep your children away from those that have the so-called "common cold." If the germ of that cold sent out into the air is enough to kill a gorilla of this size, what do you suppose it can do to your small child?

New York Day by Day

Men, Women and Things

NEW YORK, June 12—Diary of a modern Pepys: Betimes, falling in with Arthur Somers Roche for several blocks, as witty a commentator as I know. And at home find a note from Carolyn Wells and Frank Sullivan's "In One Ear," his autograph bestowing a high praise for my Sunday school attendance.

So piaffing on my typewriter but hobbledehoys barged in and I lacked courage to make them go, and a day ruined.

Thence with my wife to Howard Chandler and Nancy Christy's, and he had just finished as noble a portrait as ever I saw of Amelia Earhart and her wind-blown bob.

Dinner with the Frank Masons and the Edward L. Bernays and Karl von Wiegand there, Karl telling us learnedly of Germany and her dark problems. Later to a play talking to the Sam Goldwyns, Ellin Berlin, Herbert Swope and George Gershwin. To bed wakeful over this distraction and that.

Telegram: En route with Doug, Jr., and nothing to think about but wonder why you use word estafettes for Chelsea Freight Train Paul Reveres. Everyone knows estafettes are things admirals' wives wear as shoulder straps to show they're admirals' wives. My sympathy over loss of magic outfit. My early ambition was to be Thurston's assistant. I may make it yet. Life is so full of promise.—Lee Tracy.

In Washington sq. is a walled-in garden, a tiny plot of fragrance, the retreat of a beloved novelist—who shies at publicity over his sentimentalism. But on the wall is a bronze of the Herrick poem:

But walk'st about thine own dear bounds,
Not envying others' larger grounds;
For well thou know'st, 'tis not th' extent
Of land makes life, but sweet content.

Nothing offers stark poignancy like an old woman in rags in a doorway—human offal flung on life's scrap heap. We passed one last night in West 47th—Lisle Bell and I. For many, and their number increases, the heart has outlived the body. They are dead to feeling. It is difficult to imagine that among a few at least their eyes 50 years or so ago were compared to stars. The claw-like fingers of this shriveled old woman's hand clutched a filthy newspaper upon which her head rested. The same fingers, perhaps once lovely and white, may have coiled about the stem of a delicately flanged champagne glass around the corner. Or am I too syrupy?

Indeed this has been one of those jittery days of uh-uh when I feel exactly like the hero of a book Fannie Hurst tells about, of whom the author wrote: "He came running out of his house, jumped on his horse and rode away in all directions!"

Just Folks

Pioneer Spirit

He would not walk the certain roads
Laid out by knowledge wise,
And trimmed with little snug abodes
Where counselors advise.
The soul of him was wild to go
An independent way,
To run the risk of life and know
The dangers of the day.

He would not settle down to tread
The chartered paths and sure,
At night to tumble into bed
Soft pillowed and secure.
That restless soul of his must run,
Though friendless and alone,
Away from everything that's done
To learn what's still unknown.

He had no patience with us all
Who whispered: "Be content.
Who climbs o'er caution's sheltering wall
May die ere day be spent."
He laughed to scorn our petty fears
And tried the wall to climb,
Shouting: "Who'd live for seventy years
In safety all the time?"

He stumbled often, now and then
His body sorely burned,
Into the peaceful haunts of men
For comfort he returned,
But rested and refreshed once more,
That energetic soul
Would turn his back on safety's door
To seek some dangerous goal.

Listen, World!

Women Beating Men?

WE WERE TALKING about that oldest Favorite Theme—Marriage—and right in the midst of it, the Happy Wife threw this depth-bomb.

Elsie Robinson

"DO YOU KNOW WHAT I THINK" SHE SAID. "I BELIEVE THAT THE TROUBLE WITH MODERN MARRIAGE IS THAT MOST WOMEN ARE FORGING AHEAD AND MOST MEN ARE STANDING STILL OR HANGING BACK."

Then she went on—and I doubledare you to follow her.

"Take the average American young wife. She's intelligent, healthy, ambitious. Chances are, she worked a few years before she married. Perhaps she even had her own business.

"All the time, of course, she was wanting what women have always wanted—her own man—and secretly shopping around for him, as women have always shopped. At last she thinks she has found him. And, amidst mutual enthusiasm, they marry. Then what happens?

"The woman wants to be as successful in her home as she was in her job. She has progressive ideas. She expects to be a 50-50 partner to her husband—to work with him, in the home, as she has seen men and women working together in the outside world.

"Now of course that's a very new way for women to feel about their own homes. Only women who have been out 'on their own' can feel that way. Our mothers and grandmothers, who went from the boss-rule of their fathers to the boss-rule of their husbands, couldn't possibly feel that way. Grandma never dreamed of being a 50-50 partner with her husband. She was supposed and expected to play second fiddle to him always.

"And the average modern husband still expects his wife to do just that! He can't see why his wife shouldn't lean on him and be in awe of him as his mother was of his father.

"And now, here's our Hero expecting his 20th century wife to be like all the wives who have gone before her. But something has happened. While he has been loafing on his grandpa's laurels, she has been working, she has been hanging up a record.

"AND WHEN SHE MARRIES, THIS PERFECTLY OUTRAGEOUS MODERN FEMALE EXPECTS HER HUSBAND TO QUALIFY!

"Why should he be so satisfied with himself, merely because he's a male and a good business man? Why shouldn't he have as many interests as she has; like books and music: want to travel—IN SHORT, BE AN INTERESTING PERSON AS WELL AS A MALE?

"But he can't see that argument. Men have always felt superior merely because they were males. Why should they change now?

"Who wins? Generally the man. For a fine woman usually feels that even an unhappy marriage is better than none at all, and if she can't make a real comrade of her husband, she'll make a child of him. Coddle him. Smile or yawn at his unreasonableness, as one does with a child. Keep him happy with fibs and sweet kisses. And anyone thinks they have a successful marriage.

"But isn't it tragic? How much happier both would be if she could be honest with him; if he'd forge ahead with her.

"The truth is, women want their men to be superior. Something dies in a woman's heart when she has to treat her husband as a child.

"She'd gladly give her man all the applause he craves—if he'd prove worthy of it. But why should she respect him just because he was born a male?"

YOU tell her, Freddie—if you can.

Vote Tomorrow!

Repeal or More 'Prohibition'

Tomorrow, Tuesday, the people of Massachusetts will decide whether they want to retain prohibition or be done with it forever.

The indication is that Massachusetts will become the eleventh State to vote for repeal.

This indication may be reasonably assumed from the test votes that have previously been taken in this State and from the overwhelming majorities that have been cast against prohibition elsewhere this year.

Of course, this solemn verdict, or any other verdict in the matter can be decisive only if the voters go to the polls in large numbers to register their decision.

Prohibition, or its repeal, is a deep moral issue that very intimately affects the habits and customs of the people as a whole. The decision to be made upon it tomorrow should command their universal interest.

We have heard much in the past of the manner in which prohibition was "foisted" upon the people.

We were told it was not submitted to their judgment through the process of a solemn referendum but was put upon them like a yoke by the Legislatures. We were told it was settled upon the country at a time when the men were away at war and could not express their judgment upon it or against it. We have been told, by the drys on the other hand, that it is a noble experiment which finally represents the definite conviction of the public.

Tomorrow you can dispose of all these arguments and excuses.

You can go to the polls in your own sovereignty as a free American citizen and settle the matter for once or for all.

VOTE TOMORROW.

Let the size of your vote dispel all argument in the future.

Three Good Men

Roosevelt's Appointments

If the first selections of New England men by President Roosevelt are to be the criterion of the future, we can look to the character of public service with complete confidence.

Raymond B. Stevens of New Hampshire, who was appointed to the Federal Trade Commission, has represented his constituents in the past with diligence and courage as Congressman and a member of the United States Shipping Board. He has remained a Democrat and he has remained a Progressive under conditions which would have been more profitable for him to change his coat and relinquish his strong convictions.

We hope John H. Fahey may find his way clear to accept his nomination as member of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board. He has a kindly and genuine outlook upon life, and this is an admirable equipment for a post which soften the burdens of the home-owners who have suffered the past three years.

Joseph A. Maynard, to be Collector of the Port, is the type of successful business man who enters the public arena for the service he may contribute to his fellowman.

President Roosevelt, by his choice of these three men, has made a fine beginning in the field of public appointment, which is always difficult and always embarrassing.

Aguinaldo's Name Conjures Up Spanish War Memories

By EDWIN C. HILL

A little brown man, not more than five feet, four inches in height, still slender and supple at 63 years, announces in far-off Manila that he will go to the United States and to Washington, to tell the American Congress that the people of the Philippines are not content with the independence measure which the Congress passed over the veto of President Hoover.

And this little brown man is none other than Emilio Aguinaldo, the hero of his people, a George Washington to them, but to the American army of 30-odd years ago he was what Fuzzy Wuzzy was to British Tommies in the Sudan, and what Sandino was to be to the marines in Nicaragua.

"You May Fire When Ready, Gridley!"

Aguinaldo wasn't much more than 27 back in those good old days of '98, when Dewey steamed into Manila under the nose of the Spanish fortifications to utter his historic phrase: "You may fire when ready, Gridley"—which Gridley did, to the destruction of the Spanish fleet.

Aguinaldo was a native Filipino with some Chinese blood in him, and as a young man the Dominicans and the Jesuits despaired of making a doctor of him and sent him home. He mixed in politics, joined the Free Masons and was a party to a revolt which the native Masons organized in 1896 against the Spaniards. The wily Cabaleros decided that it would be better to buy off the insurrectos and paid them $400,000, of which Aguinaldo took his share and went to Hong Kong, to reappear on the scene two years later. He was all set to proclaim himself President when Dewey had driven out the Spaniards, and as such he was to wear a gold collar with gold triangular pendant engraved with the sun and three stars, also to carry a gold whistle and a stick with a gold handle and tassel of gold.

But, alas and alack, the peace treaty and William McKinley made no provision for Senor Aguinaldo. Whereupon he raised the standard of revolt and for three years continued to play the cat and banjo with the forces of your Uncle Sam. There was nothing of the opera bouffe about the Philippines Insurrection. Two thousand natives were killed in one night's fighting with the American regulars and the city of Manila was set afire by the insurrectos.

Guerilla warfare of the fiercest kind, very much similar to that which this generation has witnessed in Nicaragua, continued until one day in 1901 an Aguinaldo lieutenant gave himself up and General Fred Funston found on him a request from Aguinaldo for reinforcements and munitions.

In a flash the daring idea came to Funston. He would send the reinforcements! With the utmost care and secrecy he selected one hundred native soldiers and Maccabebe scouts and fitted them out as insurrectos. Two captains of the American army were sent with them, ostensibly as their captives, and the little force was landed at night from the gunboat Vicksburg in a dark cove on the northeast coast of the island of Luzon, 90 miles from the hiding place of Aguinaldo. It took the party six days to make the distance, so wild and mountainous was the land.

Aguinaldo Captured With One Volley

Word was sent on to Aguinaldo that the reinforcements were on their way, with several captive Americans. When only eight miles from the rendezvous the force was exhausted and had to stop and rest, as well as send ahead for food from the man they were out to get dead or alive, and who had a price of $25,000 on his head. Wholly taken in by the bold plan, Aguinaldo had no suspicions and sent along the food, with the word that he did not want the American captives, but that they should be treated kindly,—a rather ambiguous statement.

Nevertheless the force pushed on with the Americans, and the leaders were received by Aguinaldo at his headquarters. Going out, they passed the word for an attack on the rebel chieftain's bodyguard. So unsuspected was this that one volley sufficed to rout Aguinaldo's followers and he, in a towering rage, became a prisoner of the United States.

He took the oath of allegiance, was granted a six thousand dollar pension, and settled down to grow hemp and work pacifically for independence.
